LESS ACTIVE, BUT CHEERFUL

CAIRNS PREF. RISE ON THE REPORT

As usual, public interest was again mainly centred round local securities on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and, although trading was not quite so brisk as recently, markets presented a cheerful appearance, with the upward trend in prices again evident. British Industrials remained quiet and rather easier.

The strong support for Irish Government issues went on, but supplies were not equal to the demand. The chief feature was the spurt in 4 per Cent. Exchequer Bonds to 107½, a gain of 25s. on the day. Financial Agreement Loan and 4½ per Cent. Land Bonds both gained 5s., while Irish Sugar 4 per Cent. Deb. made good headway to 101. British Funds inclined higher, and although 3½ per Cent. War Loan failed to change hands it was called fractionally better at about 100⅛. Corporation issues presented a steady appearance. Changes in Banks were small and featureless. Bank of Ireland Stock rose to 279½, but Nationals eased to 36s. 9d. Guinness Ord. declined to 66s. 3d., but Cairnes Pref., following the full report, strengthened 1s. 6d. to 17s. 6d. Cable and Wireless Ord. changed hands at 4⅞. Rails were just a shade busier, but values were unaltered. Alliance Gas Ord. were raised pence to 24s. 6d., and still looked buyers at this level. Arklow Pottery Pref. further improved to 22s. 6d., and Cement Ord. hardened to 32s. 6d. Carroll Pref. shaded off to 23s. 10½d., and Clondalkin Paper Ord. lost a little of their recent firmness at 6s. 6d. Irish Cinema Ord. received speculative support up to 1s. 10½d. General Textile Ord., Hammond Lane Ord. and Smyth and Co. Ord. all repeated their previous levels.

Dunlop Rubbers eased slightly to 29s. 9d., and Imperial Chemical Ord. to 27s. 1½d. Lever Bros. Ord. were again 22s. 10½d., and Courtaulds Ord. hardened to 28s. 4½d.

IMPROVED TONE MAINTAINED

ROOSEVELT SPEECH EFFECTS

President Roosevelt's speech assisted the London Stock Markets yesterday in their efforts to throw off the effects of the Italo-Greek developments, and the improved tendency which appeared in several directions on the previous day was well maintained, a feature being the continuance of quiet investment buying of Gilt-edged securities, on hopes of a further influx of surplus funds into that market in the near future.

Operators generally preserved their attitude of caution, however, and at no time was business sufficiently brisk to produce significant alterations.

Albeit, Kaffirs took a turn for the better on dividend anticipations, and the favourite Far-Western Rand issues rapidly reflected the revival of interest. Industrials, on the other hand, gave a somewhat uncertain performance, but where small sales occurred prices were not allowed to recede to any material extent, and finally the market showed a number of firm features, prominent among them being Rolls-Royce and Murex.

Among Oil Shares there was a good demand for Trinidad Petroleum, and the shares advanced sharply, to close no less than 1s. 10½d. up at 50s. 7½d.

JAPANESE SIXES DOWN

Interest in Gilt-edged Stocks was centred mainly on Old War Loan, which was supported up to 101¼, but inquiries were also in evidence for Old Consols and Local Loans, and these issues strengthened to 75½ and 87½, respectively. Conversely, a small decline was shown in Conversion 3½ per cent. at 101¼. India Stocks were still idle, and seldom did dealers find it necessary to make fresh changes in Dominion and Colonial issues.

Foreign Bonds passed a subdued session, but Brazilian issues held up well, and, indeed, the Funding of 1898 gained another point to 39¼. Greek Bonds remained a nominal market, but the 7 per cent. of 1924 rallied further to close around 10. Chinese Loans had a drifting tendency, and further modest sales on an unwilling market depressed Japanese 6 per cent. of 1924 to 23.

British Rails made a satisfactory start in sympathy with the upward trend of Gilts, but few buyers came forward, and, consequently, occasional sales sufficed to give prices an irregular appearance in the closing stages. Great Western Ord. and Southern Prefd. both fell back, the former to 32½ and the latter to 42½. On the other hand, L.M.S. and Southern Defd. both finished a fraction higher. Foreign Rails again lacked support, and Argentines were further marked down in places, despite reports of an application to the Argentine Government for higher freight rates.

GAINS IN STEELS

The amount of business passing in the Industrial market was small, but while irregularity became noticeable towards the close, a fair number of modest gains were recorded on balance. Most of the interest again centred around Iron and Steel shares, and a satisfactory turnover was reported. Babcock and Wilcox proved especially firm at 35/9, and gains were shown by Colville, Pressed Steels and Amal. Metal. Electrical Equipments were well supported in places, British Insulateds rose to 78/6.

Among Aircrafts and Motors, Rolls Royce went ahead to 33½. On the other hand, Morris Motors reacted a few pence to 22/9. Shipping shares remained quietly firm on the proposed increase in freight rates. The Stores group moved within narrow limits, and Woolworths closed the turn easier. There was hardly sufficient business in Breweries to test prices, and finally Guinness were 6d. down at 66/3. Tobaccos also were idle, and "Imps" lost 7½d. to 101/3. Among Provision and Catering issues, Aerated Bread sagged to 5/6. In other directions, Murex rose to 73/11½, and small gains occurred in Tate and Lyle and Imperial Chemicals. Elsewhere, Dunlops, British Aluminium and Boots finished at reduced levels.

Turnover in Mines remained on the same small scale that has characterised dealings for some weeks past, and consequently movements were for the most part only fractional. Nevertheless, Kaffirs picked up towards the end, and Western Reefs, which earlier in the week had been rather depressed, closed 9d. higher at 18/3. Among the Producers, Crowns were again a firm market at 13. Other Gold shares were featureless, whilst most of the leading Base Metal issues went through the day without showing the slightest alteration.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (METROPOLITAN).

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last		Corresponding weeks of 1939.	1938.
Beasts	2,627—increase	103	3,720	3,299
Sheep and lambs...	5,668—increase	63	5,713	5,955
Veal calves..	5—increase	1	9	12

Arrivals of cattle were larger than on last market but under average for season. Quality, too, was not considered up to previous year's standard, but many nice drafts of beasts were to be seen here and there. There was a good attendance of both home and export buyers, and trade opened with a better tone, competition for polly types being keen and prices firm to dearer. Owing to recent high prices for polly beasts, shippers have apparently turned their attention to the suitable heifers of, say, 9 to 10 cwt., and which showed a marked improvement here this week, while secondary sorts also found ready buyers at firm to occasionally dearer rates. Best bullocks proved a sharper trade, especially fancy types, which were scarce, and quickly placed to better advantage, after which a steady sale was experienced for the remainder, and market closed with all early sell up at: Best bullocks, 48/- to 50/-; extra 50/6 to 55/-; heifers, 46/- to 47/-; extra 48/- and 48/6; useful secondary sorts, 44/6 to 45/6; others, 40/- to 43/6. As compared with corresponding market last year, prices show an increase of 6/6 to 10/- and 11/- to 15/- per cwt. dearer on same period of 1938. The show of beef cows gave one a very small proportion of young beasts to draw upon, and, whether for this or other reasons, trade on the whole proved only fair. The nice young heifer beasts, however, readily repeated previous rates, after which much bargaining took place; but in the give and take of things closing prices showed little real change over the week. Bulls were more in evidence, with suitable beasts well placed at 31/- to 32/-; others around 28/- to 29/- per cwt.; nice young cows, 30/- to 33/6; extra, 34/- to 35/-; secondary, 24/- to 27/6; others, 16/- to 22/- per cwt.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

Supplies about up to average for time of year, but the gathering on the whole proved of very mixed character, and generally minus tip-top mated class. Sales opened very slow, buyers apparently being more interested in cattle selections. After the first hour or so matters speeded up somewhat, and choice mated sheep of all weights commanded previous full terms, but anything short of mated condition proved more difficult to place except at small money. The pick of lambs also found ready buyers, but there was less inquiry for other classes, including horny types, which have recently been in demand for Northern Ireland. Prime mutton, 9¼d. to 10d.; extra 10½d.; useful quality, 7¾d. to 8¼d.; others, 5½d. to 6¼d. per lb.; and lambs, 23/- to 50/ each, according to quality.

DAIRY CATTLE.

Beasts	174—decrease	63	278	205

Supplies to this branch of market continue to fall off, this week's offerings being small for season. Both local and export buyers were in good attendance and business-like mood for the suitable types of heifers and cows, more especially the latter, and, with few of best quality available, competition proved strong, and prices advanced. Secondary cows also shared in the improved state of trade, and market closed with a good sell up at the following stiffer terms:—Best cows, £30 to £34, extra £35 to £40; heifers, £28 to £32, extra £33 to £35; secondary sorts, £25 to £27; others, £17 to £23 per head

PIGS.

Pigs	1,232—decrease	67	1,353	1,256

The small supplies to deal with here this week just about exercised a steadying influence on the money position. Sales opened with more inquiry for the pick of things at previous lower terms, but as the day wore on business turned slow, and coming on to eleven o'clock many pigs were still to find buyers' marks. Sows generally were a fair sale inside previous terms, but slips and bonhams continue to show a downward trend on poor quality offered. Prime light to medium-weight hogs, 85/- to 88/-; heavier, 78/- to 80/-; sows, 63/- to 65/- per cwt.; slips and bonhams, 21/- to 45/6 each.

YORK.—Bigger show of Irish store beasts; fair inquiry. Cattle still very dear. Three year olds to £35, two years to £27, younger types £18 to £21. English stores to £18, stirks 10 guineas. Fair trade for smaller supply sheep. North ewes to 68/-. Masham ewes 48/-, twice-crossed lambs 62/. Masham lambs 34/-.

BRISTOL.—Dull trade. There were 381 fresh Irish cattle and 70 English. Slower demand for the fairly large market of exceptionally good store cattle. All were not cleared. Three-year-olds, £24 to £25, two-year-olds £19 to £21, dairy heifers £16 to £18 10/-. Shorter supply of milch cattle. Easier prices, but demand not so good. Best made up to £27 others £22 to £24.

NORTHERN IRELAND EXCHEQUER

The account of the Northern Ireland Exchequer for the seven months to 31st October shows a balance in the Exchequer of £78,432, compared with £36,076 at the corresponding period last year. The total revenue for the period was £6,307,298, including £131,726 for last year, and the total expenditure £7,458,629, making a current deficit of £1,151,331. When other receipts, including temporary borrowings, are added, and other issues deducted, the balance in the Exchequer is as stated above.

Non-tax revenue includes £670,000 from the British Government under the Unemployment Agreement. Ulster Saving Certificates issued totalled £1,161,000 (compared with £97,000 for the corresponding seven months last year), £974,500 worth of them being advanced to the British Exchequer.

WOOL

BRADFORD.—Wool-sorting firms have received allocations of raw material for month of November on same basis as October allocation. This suggests there will not be much change in quantities to be allocated generally for home civilian trade in coming rationing period. Moderate amount of business has been done in yarns at unchanged rates.

ECONOMIC THEORY

DOES CAPITALISM CALL FOR REFORM?

At the first meeting of the session of the Statistical and Social Inquiry Society of Ireland, held last night in the Royal Irish Academy, Dawson street, Dublin, Professor George O'Brien read a paper on Recent Developments in Economic Theory.

The discussion of the economic controversies that were being waged in the last years of peace, said Professor O'Brien, should serve to dismiss two of the charges brought against professional economists by their critics. The charge of failure to agree on the fundamentals of economic theory had been shown to be grossly exaggerated, and the charge of complacency with the evils of individualism had been shown to lack foundation. It was generally admitted that capitalism had not been working as well in its modern environment as in the period of expansion in the 19th century. It was questioned whether the mature capitalistic structure was capable of making the adjustments necessary to secure a steady progress. From the standpoint of justice, the system was also adversely criticised. Gross inequalities of opportunity and reward offended against the generally accepted canons of equity. The case for the substitution of a different system, however, remained unproven.

Nothing that could be said about the achievement of capitalism should blind them to the need for reforming it, and nothing that could be said about the difficulties of Socialism would prevent its being adopted if such a reform did not take place. If the working of capitalism provoked a widespread feeling of injustice, its fate was sealed, and it was only a matter of time until it was displaced by some other system, which, because it was different, was not necessarily superior.

Professor G. A. Duncan, F.T.C.D., proposing a vote of thanks to Professor O'Brien, said that it was a pity that the professional economists of Europe had not set up some small international committee which could have standardised the essentials of economic theory. The political errors into which economic theory had been led in the past few decades had created misery and suffering for millions of people.

Professor T. A. Smiddy, seconding the proposal, said that the history of economic theory did not show the advance expected. Economists had failed to "put across" to the public the basic ideas of economy. He thought it was unfortunate that they had not got a Chair of Statistics in their Irish Universities.

Lieutenant Colonel F. E. Edgeworth, the Rev. E. J. Coyne, S.J., and Lord Glenavy also spoke.

Mr. Stanley Lyon presided.

Washington, Thursday.—The French Embassy has disclosed that the French cargo steamer San Francisco left New York on Tuesday for England to remove French citizens from Britain to France under an agreement between the British and American Governments.—(Reuter.)

PRIZE DAYS IN THE SCHOOLS

SANDFORD PARK

DR. WALTON SUGGESTS HOBBIES

THE sending of boys at a very early age to a university was something not to be encouraged. Of course, it was better to send a boy at an early age than not to send him at all, but parents should, if possible, let their boys reach an age sufficiently mature to ensure their getting the full benefit of the university, said Dr. E. T. S. Walton, F.T.C.D., yesterday, when distributing the prizes at Sandford Park School, Ranelagh, Dublin.

Captain J. G. Mann, Chairman of the Board of Governors, who presided, said that the standard of teaching in the school had been well maintained. Classes were small, with the result that individual boys got individual instruction from a big staff of masters. The board had had two air raid shelters erected, and that would give parents confidence. He congratulated Mr. Cordner, the Headmaster, and the staff on their work. They had had a very successful year, and there were fifteen more new boys on the register. In all directions good progress had been made, and discipline had been maintained at a high standard.

Mr. A. D. Cordner, Headmaster, in his annual report, said that it was very heartening to him and to the school staff to see that the boys had a lively interest in their studies. In the past year all the boys who went up for Trinity had been successful.

Mr. Cordner thanked the chairman, Captain Mann, for presenting a gold medal, which had been awarded to the best "all-rounder," J. P. Stevens, captain of the school. Captain Mann had referred to the air raid shelters. He would add that one of the masters, Mr. Dudgeon, had taken the course in A.R.P. prescribed by the Minister for Defence, and had obtained the highest possible honours. Under Mr. Dudgeon's guidance the boys had special A.R.P. drill and gas mask training.

ADVICE TO PARENTS

Dr. Walton, F.T.C.D., having distributed the prizes, said that reference had been made to the school's connection with Trinity College. His colleagues there valued that connection very much. He was told that there were nearly 40 boys from the Sandford Park School in Trinity, and, considering the size of the school, that represented a very good proportion. Some of these boys had distinguished themselves in many ways.

Many parents, he said, were in difficulty about the careers of their boys as to whether they should send them into some sort of business or to a university. He urged on parents the advisability of not trying to save on their boys' education. He would like to urge all boys to take up some hobby that would have interest for them, not merely now, but throughout their lives. Social work also might be taken up as an occupation for leisure time.

Dr. L. Abrahamson, a Governor, thanked Dr. Walton for attending, and congratulated the headmaster and the staff on his own behalf and that of his fellow-directors.

Mr. V. Waterstone seconded the vote of thanks to Dr. Walton.

ST. ANDREW'S JUNIOR SCHOOLS

SIR ROBERT TATE ON EXAMINATIONS

The importance of the examination system was emphasised by Sir Robert Tate, F.T.C.D., who distributed the prizes to the junior schools of St. Andrew's College at Clyde road, Ballsbridge, yesterday afternoon.

Sir Robert Tate said that one of the great things which a public school did for its students was that it taught them how to get on with the other fellow. If St. Andrew's did not teach that it was not likely that he would be present. The headmaster had said that he did not take an inordinate view of the value of examinations, and he also noticed that the Archbishop of Dublin, with that kindness and humanity which had characterised him during his whole life, had expressed the greatest possible sympathy with those who did not get prizes. He (himself) had got the greatest sympathy with them, but he did believe in examinations. He owed his whole position in life to the results of competitive examinations. There might be objections to examinations, but he had yet to meet anyone who had found a better system—one that was open to fewer objections.

The Headmaster (Mr. P. J. Southgate, M.A.), in the course of his annual report, said that the junior schools were both flourishing. The numbers at Rathgar had risen to 53, while the numbers at Clyde road were much the same. The teaching had remained at a high level. During the many prize-givings he had attended in the course of his career as a schoolmaster, the thought had often crossed his mind that in a properly and justly arranged society they should see the teaching staff come up to receive the prizes that they had earned so well. As it was, however, they got niggardly thanks for all their work.

On the motion of the Rev. R. W. Crockett, a vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman, Dr. K. C. Bailey, F.T.C.D. (an old boy of the school), who presided.

FOYLE COLLEGE, DERRY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DERRY, Thursday.

Mr. William Lowry, K.C., M.P., Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Affairs of Northern Ireland, and an old boy of the school, to-day distributed the awards at the speech day of Foyle College, Derry.

Professor G. Woodburn, M.A., D.D., who presided, said that Foyle was a grand old school, which had produced many famous men, but it was the ordinary rank and file, to whom there was no memorial, who constituted the most important part of the school. Everything depended on the rank and file.

The Headmaster, Mr. W. A. C. McConnell, M.A., advised parents to take an interest in their children's school affairs. In this way they would renew their own youth. He also advised parents not to expect too much of their boys, as in some cases development came later than usual to boys. His advice to the boys was to strive, because it was always a good thing to win a prize and to be first.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY PLAYERS

"SHALL WE JOIN THE LADIES?"

The opening meeting of the Dublin University Players took place yesterday in the theatre of No. 6, Trinity College, Dublin.

The play chosen was "Shall we Join the Ladies?" by Sir James Barrie, who only completed one act of what was intended to be a three-act play.

Mr. Jack White, the producer, is to be congratulated on his interesting choice of material, and also on the finished production.

In a fairly large cast for the limited stage space, the players gave excellent characterisations, and the production provided an encouraging opening to the season.

Those who took part in the play were:—Cecil Fidler, Elinor McCloy, Pamela Waller, George Good, A. Neville Peterson, Eleanor Matthews, Joy Hobson, Hazel Hughes, Vonla McBride, Margaret Booth, Henry Morris, Miles Mollon, Ben Hubermann, and Brian Moncrieff-Yates.

DAWN BEAUTY CONTESTS

The winners on these four nights will take part in the weekly finals on each Friday.

Of Interest to Women

SAVOURY SANDWICHES

Spreads For Your Bread

MEMBERS of a branch of a woman's national service in England have had to make up packed meals for workers. They made Cornish pasties and packed meat pies for a change, but the great standby was sandwiches, so they put their heads together and exchanged ideas on fillings. These are contained in a leaflet which is of interest to Irish readers.

The following suggestions have been given with an eye on the store cupboard and larder, so that special ingredients need not be purchased for the packed meal.

CHEESE SPREADS

Practically everyone likes cheese; it is a convenient article for the housewife to keep on hand and blends well with other foods. Cheese is body building, muscle and bone forming, and makes a good substitute for meat. Many good spreads can be made with cheese. Here is one example:—

Cheese Spread.—2 oz. grated cheese, a little mayonnaise, seasoning to taste. Mix well together and use to spread on bread. Add sliced cucumber, tomato, watercress or lettuce to make sandwiches.

Here are some tasty blendings with cheese:

Grated cheese, peeled sliced tomato, seasoning.

To grated cheese, add chopped pickle or chutney.

Chopped apple, grated cheese and seasoning. Mix to a paste with a little margarine.

To finely-chopped celery and nuts, add grated cheese and a little mayonnaise.

Mix grated cheese with any jam or jelly.

MEAT FILLINGS

Meat sandwiches are the ancestors of the whole sandwich family. The fourth Earl of Sandwich started something when he sat at his gaming tables eating lustily at slices of beef between bread. To-day we can make full use of meat in such fillings as sliced liver roll, brawn, sausages and haslet.

To use up the joint the following suggestions may be useful:—

Beef: Mince the beef and add horseradish cream, or chutney, or minced onion.

Mutton: Mince the meat and add chopped capers and pickled onions.

Pork: Mince the pork, adding chopped raw apple or onion. Spread bread with pork dripping.

Sausage: Slices of cooked sausage make good substantial sandwiches.

Liver Paste: Slice the liver, place it in a small greased baking tin, season, and pour a little oiled butter over the surface; cover with a greased paper; cook in a slow oven until tender; pound to a paste and correct seasoning.

Ham and Tongue: If finely minced, these are more economical to use.

Ham Paste: Mince ham and add mixed mustard to taste, a little melted butter and Tomato sauce; pound well.

LIVER ROLL AND BRAWN

½ lb. minced liver, ½ lb. minced bacon fat, 2 oz. breadcrumbs, Seasoning, a pinch of herbs, little stock or egg.

Mix all the ingredients well together with egg or stock. Form into a roll tied in a floured cloth. Boil 1½ hours. When cold press as for galantine.

1 hock and 1 pig's foot, ½ lb. stewing beef, 2 or 3 cloves, 2 or 3 all spice, 1 onion, 1 small carrot, cold water.

Split the hock and foot. Wash well. Put into a saucepan, cover with cold water, add a pinch of salt, bring to the boil, and skim well. Add beef, spices and vegetables, and simmer gently for 4 hours. Remove the meat from the stock, cut into neat pieces, season and fill a mould with the meat. Strain the stock, fill up crevices in the mould with it. Cover with a plate and put a weight on the top. Turn out when cold.

SIMPLE SAVOURIES

For these fillings canned or fresh fish may be used.

Herring: Skin and bone cold cooked herring, mash with tomato sauce, mayonnaise, or a little vinegar.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

SAVOURY SPAGHETTI

Sticks of spaghetti, tomatoes, onion, butter and seasoning.

Wash the spaghetti and cook in boiling water until soft. Turn the spaghetti into a collander, and rinse with cold water until it is almost cold. Have ready a buttered pie dish, and in this place a layer of cooked spaghetti, a layer of finely chopped onion covered with a few dabs of butter, another layer of spaghetti, and a layer of sliced tomato with a few more dabs of butter. Continue until the dish is full. Add a few more dabs of butter, and cook in a slow oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Meanwhile prepare the grilled meat.

This is an excellent accompaniment to fried fillets of veal, grilled sausages, or kidneys and bacon, and takes the place of potatoes and vegetable. It may also be served on its own.

Next Week:

HAM AND CREAM CHEESE SALAD.

Haddock: Flake cooked haddock and pound well with anchovy paste. Work to a paste with a little butter.

Salmon: Flake the salmon. Add melted butter, about 2 teaspoonsful to a small tin of fish. Season with Worcester sauce and cayenne pepper, cucumber or chopped capers.

Anchovy and Beetroot: Mince the anchovy and chop the beetroot, moisten with mayonnaise.

Shrimp or Prawn: Mix chopped shrimps to a paste with butter and seasoning.

Roe: Herring or cod's roe makes a very good sandwich filling. Cook the roes and mix with breadcrumbs. Season well.

Kipper: Carefully bone the fish and mix with any sauce or mustard.

Sardine: Mash up the fish and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Experts say eat raw vegetables; grated carrot takes a bow in a health sandwich.

Finely grate young raw carrots, season with pepper and salt. Spread brown bread with cream cheese or margarine. Add a liberal filling of carrots.

Spread brown bread with pork dripping or bacon fat. Mash baked beans, season well, use as the sandwich filling. A layer of mustard and cress or watercress or lettuce will improve this sandwich.

Potato Butter.—Take one potato weighing ¼lb.; peel and boil until quite soft. While still hot add ¼lb. of butter. Beat well. This makes ½lb. of butter, which is pleasant to taste.

SWEET FILLINGS

Here are some sweet fillings for variety.

Fig.—Chop or mince the figs, moisten with marmalade or use with slices of apple.

Chocolate.—Grate the chocolate, moisten with a little milk or some custard if you have any over from another dish.

Apple.—Wipe the apples; it is not necessary to peel them. Core and cut into slices. To preserve the colour put the slices into salt water until they are used. Use with marmalade or red currant jelly, or with chopped celery, nuts or carrot, or sprinkle with cinnamon or chopped mint.

Peanut Butter.—Peanut butter and raspberry jam make a tasty filling for wholemeal sandwiches

SWEET SPREADS

Sweet spreads are useful; for one which is simple to make, mix butter with a little sugar, and add cinnamon or chopped mint.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

INSURANCE AND THE L.S.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Brunker, President of the Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting yesterday, gave us some inspiring news when he said: "He was glad to be able to tell that meeting that he believed that in the course of a few days the question would be solved as regards motor insurance."

Surely, it is time that the Government realised their duty to the "B" Group of the L.S.F. Hard-working citizens of all grades have been more than willing to patrol roads nightly at all hours, no matter what the weather conditions, in the interests of their country, and motor car owners have agreed to use and drive their cars for this duty, providing petrol and oil, etc., at their own expense.

We as a group are unarmed; the country is still neutral, and the work we are doing—in my opinion and that of some insurance companies—should make no difference in the policies held. We look forward to an immediate agreed decision in this matter, which will enable this very important work to be carried on with the sincerity it deserves.—Yours, etc.,

WILLIAM D. REVILLE,
"B" Group Section Leader.

TOLERANCE IN THE NORTH

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—If the Rev. R. J. Kerr, at the meeting of the Dublin Synod, had confined himself to denouncing the living conditions and gambling there and here, I should have been with him all the way. I am as anxious as he can possibly be to see better housing, better living conditions for the working people, especially in the North, with which he is so well acquainted. In County Fermanagh, where, I think, he officiated for a time, the Rural Councils have not erected a labourer's cottage since the Northern Government first functioned in 1921. I hold a letter marked "private" from a well-known Unionist leader in Omagh to the chairmen of the District Councils in two counties advising them to refuse to erect any cottages because the majority of the applicants would be "Nationalists who were disloyal." I am glad to know that a different and more Christian spirit prevails where Mr. Kerr is stationed now.

But the reverend gentleman longs after a "nagging propaganda," like to that of the "minority in the North over education and other things," in order to make public the views of his co-religionists upon a variety of social evils.

Education, as I indicated, is not our major grievance, but, nevertheless, it is a very real one. The vast majority of the Protestant schools have been transferred to the Regional Educational Committees. There are some still operating as voluntary schools, but, generally speaking, however much people like the Rev. Mr. Kerr may dislike the principle, whenever the cost of erecting a new school arises the "children of light" (I quote Mr. Kerr) seem to be wiser and have less principle than the "children of this world," for they invariably surrender to the material necessities of the moment.

Protestants, apparently, can transfer their schools without conscientious scruples—when it suits them to do so—as all the Regional Educational Committees have majorities of their own denominations.

The Northern Government knew, when it legislated first, that Catholics could not transfer their schools to these Committees. The penalty they imposed upon their fellow-countrymen for possessing conscientious objections was a heavy one, as the statistics I gave fully prove.

All we desire is to be left in the position we occupied in 1921, when the Northern Government took office. The British Government gave two-thirds the cost of new buildings. Surely it is not an unreasonable request to ask for the terms we had then?

Before the Northern Government legislated upon education, in 1923, it had already jerry-mandered the County Council electoral areas, thus securing, in turn, majorities of its own supporters upon each of the 18 Regional Educational Committees, who are nominated by the County Councils. This applies to Fermanagh, Tyrone, South Armagh and Derry City, where Nationalists are in large majorities. The position there is that 100 Unionist votes is equal in many instances to 225 Nationalists votes.

Under the Government of the twenty-six counties (we are glad to know on the testimony of the leaders of the Protestant Churches) there is no differentiation, and the educational legislation does not penalise any creed. The Rev. Mr. Kerr went much further at the Synod meeting than education, as he also included "other things."

The "other things" mean our being barred out from all important public appointments in the gift of County and District Councils in the six counties, no matter what the merits of the applicant. It also includes our exclusion from the Irish nation—our greatest grievance of all. I notice the Rev. Mr. Kerr has nothing to say about the national wrong. Perhaps in his heart he feels it as much as we do, but, like so many of his co-religionists in the twenty-six counties, he is still reluctant to make public his views upon the national demand.—Yours, etc.,

CAHIR HEALY.

"POINT OF MEDICAL USAGE"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Our attention has been drawn to a report of statements made by the President of the Insurance Institute of Ireland, published in yours of the 29th instant. It might appear from the statement, as reported, that the Irish Medical Union is a body subordinate to the British Medical Association. This, in fact, is not the case, as the Irish Medical Union is a completely autonomous body.

It is not clear from the report whether Mr. O'Callaghan or the representative of the Union suggested that the British Medical Association do not object to their members appearing before insurance institutes in Great Britain, and, in view of the known attitude of the medical profession, it is, of course, obvious that no representative of the Union would have suggested that there was no objection on the part of the British Medical Association to medical men giving lectures before lay bodies.

Mr. O'Callaghan's alleged statement that only fifty per cent. of the medical profession in Eire are members of the Irish Medical Union is not in accordance with the facts. The Union is more representative, both numerically and through its "group organisation," of the profession in this country than is any other medical body elsewhere.—Yours, etc.,

J. C. MARTIN, Medical Secretary.

CHRISTMAS TURKEYS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I take the liberty of drawing your attention to the Irish turkey markets this season.

If the shippers are to take advantage of the English markets Irish farmers and poultry breeders must sell their turkeys in good time. Last year I had to refuse large orders owing to the fact that farmers and breeders did not market their birds until the 18th of December and it was impossible to have them delivered in time.

This year I am forced to start my markets on December 2nd, and I am notifying farmers in my district that I will not buy any Allies at Odds?

We do not place much confidence in these rumours—from this, that and the other European capital—of a difference of opinion between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini. The story, which has been published in varying forms during the past few days, is that the reported negotiations between Germany and France were undertaken without any reference to Italy, and that Italy is discontented with whatever understanding—its terms still are unknown—has been reached. According to the report, Herr Hitler proposed certain terms to Marshal Pétain: these terms seemed unnecessarily severe to the Marshal, who complained particularly against the large concessions of territory which he must make to the Italians, and he protested with vehemence. Herr Hitler—still according to the report—was eager for a formal settlement with France, and consented to modify the terms of agreement, but therein he clashed with Signor Mussolini, who had no desire for any settlement that would not satisfy all of his country's territorial aspirations. The rumour of a cleavage of opinion has gone so far that it actually is suggested that the Italian invasion of Greece has taken place without Germany's approval. All these whispers may be true—nothing, after all, is impossible nowadays—but we do not think so. The bond between Italy and Germany, even if it is only, at the weakest, a bond of expediency, is not so slim that it can be impaired with such ease. Italians and Germans are not "natural" friends, any more than Frenchmen and Englishmen are "natural" friends; yet the French and the British fought side by side during the last Great War, and there is no reason to suppose that the Germans and the Italians will be at variance during the present conflict. Each nation has a job to do: each nation, without the other's support, would be weakened to a substantial degree. Whatever else the two dictators may have been, they have been supremely practical; in the common phrase, they have kept an eye on the main chance with surpassing skill, and they are not likely to let momentary differences of opinion interfere with their hopes of final victory. If they should fail to act as a team now, they might do enormous damage to themselves and to each other; for Italy clearly has the task of keeping a great part of the Royal Navy occupied in the Mediterranean, while Germany maintains the attack upon Great Britain herself. From the British point of view, it may be encouraging to feed on these tales of dictators at variance, but it would be wrong to put excessive faith in them. This war already has proved the falsity of many hopes. On the one hand, the Germans freely prophesied that the whole British Commonwealth would fall into separate pieces at the first shock; yet the fact has been very different. On the other hand, nobody thought that the Russo-German understanding would last for anything like a year—but it is now in its fifteenth month, and there are no immediate signs of cleavage. War inevitably engenders "wishful thinking," and this habit of mind, while helpful for a time to national moral, is apt to be dangerous, since the reaction from over-aspiring hopes is despair. The chance of a serious cleavage of opinion between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini is exceedingly remote: they have too much to gain by solidarity, too much to lose by divergence. If differences exist, they will be settled—at least, for the time being. Great Britain is not so weak that the war against her does not demand the most intimate co-operation between the totalitarian States; for without a Mediterranean fleet Herr Hitler's prospects would be comparatively poor, and Marshal Graziani would be in a far less happy plight if the Luftwaffe were not hammering daily against London.

Daylight Saving

As our correspondence columns have shown, there are divided views in this country concerning the continuance of the operation of the Daylight Saving Act for the full twelve months, after the example of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The principal objections are raised on behalf of school-children, who, apparently, regard it as a hardship to have to leave their beds before 8 a.m.; but, whatever the ground of opposition to daylight saving may be, it is manifest that men had become the servant, instead of the master, of the clock. Instead of being a handy instrument for the division of his day into twenty-four hours, it had become a relentless regulator of his tasks, his meals, his sleeping and his waking, his sport and his pleasure. The ancients, untroubled by timepieces, took a rough and ready reckoning from the sun, and got along very well without considerations of hours and minutes and seconds. The sun was the natural regulator of man's life. Nowadays the clock has been elevated to a position of such dominance that the sun had ceased almost to matter—that is, till the Daylight Saving Act attempted to force men to go by the sun, when those who had been ignoring considerations of dawn and sunset virtually throughout their lives suddenly saw great value in what they called "sun time," or "old time," or "real time." The truth of the matter was that they did not see why they should have to get out of bed an hour earlier every morning and go to bed an hour earlier every evening. Getting out of bed and going to bed are trials, if not hardships, and the postponement of both operations to later hours was becoming more conspicuous with each generation. The old saw, "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise," was being ignored. The sun, in which such virtue is discovered as often as daylight saving is under discussion, was being ignored by man. His 12 o'clock noon, traditionally accepted as the time when the sun was at its meridian and as mid-day, was in reality his early morning. Instead of preparing for bed when darkness came, he put on tails and a white tie and went out in search of the high-lights. There was too much activity in the hours of darkness, and too much of the light of morning was being wasted. The arrangement whereby 12 noon was at mid-day was purely arbitrary. Noon used to be at 3 p.m. In effect, therefore, the Government said: "We shall make 1 p.m. by the clock mid-day, and people will rise earlier and retire earlier, thereby living less by artificial light." They were forcing man back to a more natural way of living. They could not alter the sun to suit man's habits, so that they altered the clock, of which man and his habits were slaves.

For Services Rendered

Salaries rarely are paid in direct ratio to the amount of work done by an employé, and civilised man no longer expects that they ought to be; he has become accustomed to a false system of valuation. From the time when he leaves school—where, incidentally, he does more work for less money than he ever will do again—the boy meets with example after example of the apparent injustice of the system of payment for work carried out. His classmates drift apart and go their different ways. One of them begins his career in an office where he earns about fifteen shillings a week. Another goes to college, where he exists on prize-money and an allowance from home. Another becomes apprenticed to some trade and for a time earns nothing. One lucky member of the class, perhaps, will walk straight out of school into a well-paid job. In later years the boy will discover still more about the uneven distribution of earned as well as unearned income. He will find that clerks who have to keep up a well-dressed, tidy appearance very often earn about thirty shillings a week. He will find, too, that dustbinmen, who have no appearances whatever to keep up, earn as much as five pounds a week. He will read of Government officials and film stars whose salaries are so high as to be almost inconceivable to anyone who earns less than five pounds a week, and, no doubt, of salaries which are so low as almost to be inconceivable. It is unlikely that he will come across very many salaries as surprising as that of the caretaker of the Croghane burial ground in County Clare. This person, if we judge from the list of duties published, would seem to earn about three pounds a week, but actually receives only three pounds a year. For this munificent award he is expected to look after the graveyard in every way. He must paint the gates, cut the grass, ivy, shrubs and other growths without harming the grave-stones, remove any windfalls caused by storms, report any breaches in the walls and fence them temporarily till they can be mended. The entrance gate of the graveyard is kept locked, but the caretaker must be there to open it in the event of an interment; and, lastly, he has to behave with courtesy and consideration at all times, and to every visitor who comes to the graveyard, whether in attendance at funerals or at any other time. This last stipulation hardly seems to be necessary; such a princely salary would attract only members of the aristocracy. If the caretaker were offered an extra five shillings a decade, it is possible that he might take over the actual grave-digging as well, while the grave-stones, one would imagine, could be carved by him in his spare time, as a relaxation from work.

Scarcity Value

When the rich, or even the semi-rich, dine out, caviare takes its place as a matter of course. Like evening dress, champagne and diamonds, it exists as a symbol for everything that is affected and "high-class." One of its salient and most essential qualities is its inaccessibility to the man-in-the-street. At the moment this inaccessibility seems to be in grave danger of ceasing. We learn that the Russians have made great achievements in the artificial breeding of the sturgeon; and the report would indicate that a decrease in the price of caviare may be expected—assuming, of course, that it can run the gauntlet of war. This decrease, however, might bring caviare within the reach of the bourgeoisie, and would be regarded, therefore, as highly undesirable by the really upper classes. In fact, if caviare ever should become as familiar to the tables of the lower classes as beefsteak pudding, the idle rich would be obliged to find another novelty on which to waste their money. It is unlikely that this decrease will ever occur; as a rule, the Government in capitalist countries—says the anti-capitalist—restricts the supplies of luxury commodities in order to create a false shortage, and so to keep the prices high. In this restriction, the Government, if we are to believe what Robert Burns says on the subject, is only following the lead of the Creator—

Ask why God made the gem so small,
And why so huge the granite.
Because God meant mankind should set
The higher value on it.

In spite of the financial value of these things which are so scarce, in the long run it is the large things which matter. If the world suddenly were deprived of emeralds, it would not cause any appreciable change in the life of the man-in-the-street; if it suddenly were deprived of cement, there would be a serious upheaval. The same thing applies to caviare. If caviare were to disappear suddenly from the menus of the world, few people would be any worse off. On the other hand, the disappearance of bread and butter from the menus would be little short of disastrous. In these circumstances, one would imagine that caviare and emeralds would be less expensive than cement and bread and butter. In all branches of life this paradox is noticeable; the things which matter the most cost little or nothing, while pure luxuries, which are quite unnecessary, cost tremendous prices. People have always realised that bread and butter were necessary; since the beginning of the war people in England are beginning to find them desirable. Even sleep which formerly was taken for granted, is now being appreciated as one of the most wonderful things in life. If caviare were rationed, and unlimited supplies of butter were obtainable, it is extremely likely that the people—even the "caviare classes"—would be very pleased.

German Attacks in Champagne.

The French report that in Artois they have made progress towards the Bois en Hache, and occupied portions of the German trenches.

German attacks to the south of Souchez and in the neighbourhood of La Courtrine have been repulsed.

After a violent bombardment, the Germans, on Saturday, made an attack with enormous masses of troops on the positions recently conquered by the French in Champagne. They pressed their attacks with great desperation, but at every point they were repulsed with terrible loss.

Again yesterday the Germans made four more desperate attacks north of Messil. They were all repulsed after heavy casualties.

Peace Talk in America.

The Washington Correspondent of the Daily News and Leader, telegraphing on Sunday, says: There is a distinct feeling in official circles that there will be discussions on the subject of peace very soon. It is accepted that a movement engineered by Germany is on foot for a cessation of the war.

LONDON LETTER

DEVELOPING THE EXPORT TRADE

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

SATISFACTORY progress has been made with preparations for the development of British export trade, and many industries have completed their plans for large-scale production for the overseas markets. The various sections of the textile industry have combined for the purpose of studying the requirements of the world and their capability of meeting them. Already their work is bearing fruit in the shape of orders for Dominion and foreign markets. The heavy industries naturally are concerned at the present time mainly with the production of munitions and war work for the British Government, but the question of production for export has not been overlooked, and the Government is releasing iron and steel to enable certain contracts for overseas to be fulfilled. An outstanding example is provided by the British cycle industry, which has drawn up a programme by which more than a million machines will be exported during the next twelve months. There will be some contraction in the supply for the home market, but a limited number will be available to meet urgent requirements.

Near East Situation

Developments in the Near East in the immediate future are dependent to a large extent upon the policy which Turkey intends to pursue, and this may be made clearer when President Ineunu speaks at the opening of the new parliamentary session to-morrow. At the moment it would appear that Turkey will not participate in the war unless forced to do so by Bulgarian action, and there are conflicting views in that country as to the wisdom of siding with the Axis. In the meantime, Istanbul is the centre of much diplomatic activity, the importance of which is shown by the sudden departure in the night of Von Papen, the German Ambassador, who for some time past has been engaged in trying to secure, if not the assistance, at least the neutrality of Turkey. There are indications that affairs in the Near East will assume more important dimensions in the near future, but the manner in which they will develop remains rather obscure at present.

Meals in Tube Stations

The experiment of providing cheap and simple meals for those taking shelter in the London tubes has proved so successful that it is to be extended so that, instead of only one station, refreshments will be obtainable at eighty stations as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. Limitation of underground stations in the way of space and equipment must be taken into consideration, and no mugs or cups will be provided, so that those taking shelter must take their own receptacles. Tea, coffee or cocoa will be served at one penny a cup, and there will be sausage rolls and cold meat pies, as well as cakes and buns, at one penny and two-pence each. A staff of women will be engaged to serve the refreshments, and it is probable that a sufficient number will be forthcoming from those who usually take shelter. Electric water heating apparatus is being installed, and by to-morrow the second station will be supplying refreshments, others being added to the list within the next few days, so that eventually eighty stations will be serving the meals.

Extra Petrol for Motorists

The scheme for the issue of extra petrol to motorists who undertake to carry passengers regularly to and from their place of employment comes into operation to-morrow, and, though the scheme was only announced two days ago, many thousands of applications have been received for the coupons, which will authorise the issue of extra fuel. Cars engaged in this work are to bear two labels, saying "Help Your Neighbour" and "Free Lifts at Your Own Risk." All ordinary private cars are eligible, as well as motor cycles with sidecars, but not solo motor cycles. The amount of extra petrol obtainable depends upon the horse-power of the car and the distance to be covered by the offer of free rides. Official recognition is now given to a practice which has been followed for some time, and motorists who have been performing these acts of good neighbourliness will now be able to obtain extra petrol for which they will pay at the fixed rate, in addition to their normal ration and any additional allowance which they may have been granted.

Better Travel Facilities

New plans for the improvement of travel facilities were announced by the London Passenger Transport Board to-day. They include ten more express 'bus routes, new 'bus services between railway stations, and earlier evening peak period for winter traffic. It is expected that in the winter there will be no passengers for road vehicles after

GREEK MAIN DEFENCES REMAIN INTACT

NAVAL UNITS SHELL ITALIAN POSTS

Battle Reported in Janima Sector

ITALIAN artillery has been pounding the Greek advanced posts throughout the day and night, but nowhere has contact been made by the Italian forces with the main Greek defence lines, says the Press Association.

After more than three days' fighting the greatest depth of the Italian advance at any one point is between three and six miles, according to authoritative Greek sources. The Italians are using a large number of mobile field guns, in which they are greatly superior to the Greeks.

Even in the coast sector—the strongest point of the Italians—the fighting is just an affair of outposts. The Greek lines remain unbroken in the Macedonian sector of the Albanian front.

The Epirus front is holding, and the Italians are now beginning to use the bad weather in Albania as an excuse for their failure to achieve any penetration of consequence. Their troops and mechanised equipment are advancing in the mud, they say, but reports of brilliant feats of arms by Greek defenders have been the real reason for halting the Blitzkrieg. A Greek platoon has routed two Italian companies.

Indication of British activity in the Greek sphere is given by R.A.F. reconnaissances over Greek and Italian waters.

Greece used naval units yesterday to shell advance Italian positions on the Albanian border, and their bombardment of an hour produced no response from Italian warships or 'planes.

HEAVY OUTPOST FIGHTING

Greek troops were reported yesterday to be counter-attacking on one sector, thought to be north of Janima, and reliable sources, says the Associated Press, said that a hill, previously taken by the Italians, had been recaptured. Large quantities of arms and equipment were said to have been captured by the Greeks as they stormed the hill in the face of heavy fire. This sector was the scene of the heaviest fighting, but the line was little changed.

On the remainder of the frontier only sporadic firing was reported, and there was little close contact between the advance units of the two armies.

Both the Greeks and Italians were reported to be using 'planes to bomb and machine-gun communications behind the front. Informed sources declared that the Italians did no damage.

BRILLIANT FEATS

Stories of brilliant feats of arms by Greek soldiers are beginning to reach Athens. An entire division of Italian Alpine troops is reported to have been held up for many hours in the mountains by only three Greek companies.

Elsewhere, a Greek platoon, making clever use of the ground, routed two Italian companies, which abandoned much of their equipment as they fled.

Hitherto only the Greek covering forces have been engaged, but the Italians have already learned not to expect a walk-over. When the main Greek Army is brought into action, the present inequality of numbers in Italy's favour will disappear. Reinforcements are continually arriving for the Greeks as mobilisation proceeds. Trains are hastening north with thousands of men, eager to relieve the troops already holding the line—many of them wiry, six-footers from Pindus, who are capable of great endurance.

THREE ADVANCE LINES

The mountainous nature of the country on the Greek-Albanian frontier dictates only three practicable lines of advance for the Italian forces. In the north-east, a gap in the high ridges which affords an approach to Florina, on the road to Salonika, is exceptionally well guarded by the Greeks.

The Italians had concentrated heavily at Korea, in Albania, for a drive against Florina, but so far they have failed to make any significant progress.

Another gap is found in the centre of the front, but this leads only into difficult country, where few, if any, strategic advantages are to be won by an attacking force.

Near the coast is a third gap between the mountains and the sea.

The Greek port of Patras, where more than one hundred people were killed on Monday, has again been heavily attacked from the air. A communiqué issued by the Ministry of Public Safety states that in two raids on Wednesday damage was caused by eight 'planes to a number of houses. One person was injured. More than 200 bombs are said to have been dropped on Patras, destroying a large number of buildings, none of which could be described as a military objective. The high casualty list is attributed to the failure of the population to take cover when they saw that the raiders were flying the Greek colours—a fact which is causing the greatest indignation throughout Greece.

TOWNS BOMBED

Three Italian aircraft also bombed the town of Lepanto on Wednesday, killing a woman and injuring eight other civilians. A primary school and a house were wrecked.

Other towns bombed included Agrinion and Egina, but only minor damage was done. The raid on Egina led to an afternoon alarm in Athens.

Athens had its first night-time alarm on Wednesday, when anti-aircraft fire was heard in the distance about 10 p.m.

A 9 p.m. curfew has been imposed on all foreigners in Athens, apparently in connection with a police comb-out of undesirables.

ROME EXPLAINS SLOW ADVANCE

Explaining why the Italian operations in Greece are proceeding slowly, Rome radio last night said:—"In the first place, the reason why the Italian advance has not been pursued with lightning speed was that we still hoped that the Greek Government would repent of its rash action while there was still time. Secondly, the fighting in the mountain zone must entail a slow and sure advance, costing the smallest number of lives and least damage before this can be turned into a sweeping conquering attack. That this has not happened yet shows that Italy had not prepared in advance for armed intervention."

Italian Correspondents on the Greek front are stressing the exceptional intensity of the bad weather prevailing in Albania for the last week, the Stefani Agency stated last night. Driving rain, which falls without interruption day and night has, it said, transformed roads into streams, streams into rivers, and plains into swamps and lakes. Troops, horses and mechanised equipment are advancing in rain and mud.

REPORTED GAINS

Associated Press from Yugo-Slavia says that Italian troops are reported here to have gained ground in a southern thrust into Greece, but are unable to crack the stout Greek resistance in the north. The Italians, attempting to smash into Epirus towards Janina, have made progress, although Axis sources claimed less than 50 kilometres.

The Greek steamer Attica (1,405 tons) has been captured by the Italians, following the refusal of her captain to sail for an Italian-controlled port, the German radio stated last night. The steamer was on her from America to Greece with a mixed cargo of oil, copper, tyres, and glycerine, the announcer said.

GREEK MINISTER TO LEAVE ROME

The Greek Minister in Rome, M. Politis, who has demanded his passports, has made arrangements for the departure of the Greek diplomatic and Consulate staffs from Italy, says a Rome despatch, quoted by P.A. It is expected in Italian political circles that it will be some days before he leaves, as the Greek Consuls in the provinces require some days to wind up their affairs.

The Italian Minister in Athens, Signor Grazzo, is taking similar steps.

A report that over 100 military aircraft have been supplied by the Soviet Union to Greece in the last few days is emphatically denied by the official Soviet Agency, according to a broadcast by Moscow radio.

400,000 GREEKS UNDER ARMS

A Belgrade message to the Press Association says that Greece now has 400,000 equipped troops under arms. The Yugo-Slav-Greek frontier is still open, but no trains are crossing. Transport between the Yugo-Slav town of Monastir and Korca, in Albania, is still normal.

The President of a former Greek Guild in the Dodecanese Islands has asked the Government to let him have a force of 5,000 Cretans and permission to attack and occupy Cos, one of the islands, at his own expense. He plans later to attack the rest of the islands, which formerly belonged to Greece.

Offers of aid from wealthy Greeks are pouring into Government offices. One woman shipowner has placed three vessels at the disposal of the nation. A Greek family living in London has cabled £5,000 as a contribution to the Air Force.

GERMAN VIEW OF ATTACK

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

BASLE, Thursday.

A change has taken place in the view taken by the Wilhelmstrasse, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten. It is suggested that a state of war between Greece and Italy will soon have consequences for Germany's relations with Hungary, which require reviewing.

Official circles in Berlin compare Italy's action in Greece with Germany's action in Norway, saying that Greece lies in the Italian war sector as Norway in the German sector.

The political solidarity of Berlin and Rome is, however, emphasised, seeing that the action against Greece is part of the common warfare against Britain.

STOCKHOLM, Thursday.

The Berlin Correspondent of the Stockholm Tidningen says that it is considered that Germany will not declare war on Greece unless this is seen to be necessary as a result of the development of military operations.

A leading article in Dagbladet declares that, despite three months of an incessant nerve war, Italy has not succeeded in weakening the Greek's moral backbone, which is the first line of defence of every nation. Nor has she succeeded in driving a wedge between the King and General Metaxas.

NO SOVIET PROMISE TO TURKEY

ANKARA, Thursday.

Reports that the Soviet Union had promised to assist Turkey in the event of a German attack on the Dardanelles are ridiculed in Ankara. The Turkish view apparently is that if the Soviet Union had felt strong enough to challenge Germany she would have prevented her from establishing herself on the Black Sea coast.

According to reports reaching Ankara from Moscow, Russian officials are already hinting that the Straits are of no great interest to the Soviet Union, anyway. Turkish opinion holds that Soviet interests now are bound up with a defeat of Germany, but it is felt that the Soviet is also afraid of Britain, whom, she fears, would have the opportunity once Germany was defeated of avenging herself for the Soviet-German pact of 1939.

GERMANS CLAIM BRITISH STEAMER SUNK

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

BERLIN, Thursday.

This morning, in the waters west of Ireland, a heavy German bomber sank the British steamer Starstone, the official German News Agency stated this afternoon. According to Lloyd's Register, the Starstone, 5,702 tons, is owned by the Alva Steamship Company, and registered in London.

OFFICIAL GUIDE TO THE WAR

ITALIANS BLAMING BAD WEATHER

ITALIAN.—Communiqué read:—Our units, continuing their advance in the Epirus, have reached the River Kalames at various points. The unfavourable weather conditions and the obstacles created by the enemy in retreat have not slowed down the movement of our troops.

The communiqué also claimed to have bombed the port of Patras and several ships laden with troops, "overcoming adverse weather conditions and the lively enemy anti-aircraft reaction."

GREEK.—Communiqué last night read:—On the Epirus front our forces, after a slight withdrawal by our advanced posts, according to a prescribed plan, have maintained their positions throughout the day of October 30, holding back by their fire the movements of various enemy columns. On the rest of the front to-day was quiet.

Irregular bands are co-operating with the enemy. Enemy aircraft indiscriminately bombed the town of Patras and machine-gunned the inhabitants. Some houses collapsed.

Rion and Lepanto, where there are no military objectives, were also bombed. One person was killed and five injured. At Lepanto a school was destroyed.

One of our 'planes that engaged Italian fighters over Albanian territory has not returned to its base.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

GENERAL FRANCO'S SPAIN

The Times remarks in a leading article to-day:—

General Franco is, above all, a man of character, and the apparently negative result of Hitler's recent visit to him at Hendaye confirms the impression that he will never be led astray from his chosen course. The Caudillo, no doubt, shares certain ambitions for his country which are in the minds of all Spaniards, and he would not hesitate to alter his course in his own time if he believed it to be in the interest of Spain. But he has repeatedly stated that the country's present need is, above all, to repair the ruin of the civil war, to unite the parties so lately divided, to restore the integrity of national life, and to lay the foundations of prosperity. To plunge into a new campaign, or even to allow the peninsula to become the scene of another German campaign, would jeopardise every one of these purposes. A new war could not restore what an old war destroyed. Association with the Axis is to bring as its reward Gibraltar, Tangier, more Moroccan territory. But Spain is rapidly losing any belief which she may have nourished after the fall of France in the ultimate victory of the Axis Powers. Moreover, the best minds in Franco's Administration have always claimed that Spain stood for something quite different from a policy of unscrupulous aggrandisement. During and after the civil war they declared that they were fighting not only for Spain but for Europe. They said, and they had some claim to say, that the new Spain was the champion of national tradition and independence, of family life, of the integrity and maintenance of religion.

LATE NEWS

ADRIFT FOR 55 DAYS: ATE SEAWEED

BRITISH SEAMEN TELL OF ORDEAL

NASSAU (BAHAMAS), Thursday.

Adrift for 55 days in a lifeboat, with seaweed as their principal food, Robert Tapscott (19), of Cardiff, and Wilbert T. Widdicombe (24), of Newport, told a harrowing story after drifting into the Bahamas. Their ship was sunk early in September. They took to the lifeboats with five others. Two of their companions were killed and three perished.

When their water supply was exhausted they managed to catch some rainwater, but for the last eight days they had nothing to drink. In addition to seaweed, they ate one flying fish and one garfish.

On Wednesday a farmer saw the pair crawling along the beach on Eltuthera Island, and to-day, after first aid treatment, they were flown to Nassau.

Widdicombe, who lost nearly six stone during the ordeal, was able to walk to-day, but Tapscott had to be supported. It was estimated that they had drifted 2,500 miles. Both were burned black by the sun.—(Associated Press.)

MR. WILLKIE ON "MY AMBASSADOR"

MR. KENNEDY'S POST IN LONDON

CAMDEN (NEW JERSEY), Thursday.

"We are sick of the kind of one-man Government that calls an Ambassador of the United States 'My Ambassador,'" declared Mr. Wendell Willkie here to-night.

"It used to be 'My friends'; now it's 'My Ambassador'; pretty soon it will be 'My Generals,' then 'My people.'" he said.

"If Mr. Kennedy is the Ambassador of the third-term candidate, who is our Ambassador to Britain? . . . We, the people, want an Ambassador in Great Britain, and one who is on the job . . . . and if we had one he would be at his post at this critical hour doing everything he possibly could to keep us advised of the conditions in Britain.

"Never have Americans been faced with so much to do so quickly. . . There has been a terrible reaction sweeping across the peoples of the earth. This is a reaction—a counter-revolution—against what we know as the democratic way of life. That reactionary system is hammering at the gates of the little island of England. It is reaching across the Atlantic to trouble the peace of this hemisphere. The people of Britain are fighting with their lives against the aggressor. That is the duty to which they are called, and we must help them with more and more of the materials they need."

BELFAST TREASON CHARGE

The hearing concluded at a special court in Belfast yesterday of the charges of treason felony and possession of firearms and ammunition against sixteen Belfast men.

The accused were:—Gerald Joseph Higgins, 32 Sevastopol street; Kevin John J. Harrison, 259 Grosvenor road; James Joseph Weldon, 92 Servia street; John Patrick Maguire, 47 Lady street; Samuel Patrick M'Comb, 1 Alma street; Terence Benson, 6 Sultan street; Joseph Patrick M'Kenna, 5 Cairns street; Francis Joseph Hicks, 5 Alma street; Joseph Patrick M'Manus, 35 Sultan street; Daniel Patrick Rooney, 101 Cyprus street; William James M'Kee, 89 M'Donnell street; Charles M'Cotter, 11 Slate street; Edward Dalzell, 168 Ross street; Thomas M'Menamy, 141 Cullingtree road; Patrick Joseph M'Guinness, 9 Ton street, and William John M'Garry, 19 Getty street.

Informations were refused in all the charges against M'Garry, and the other accused men were returned for trial in custody at the City Commission on November 19.

12,000 'PLANES FOR BRITAIN

"INSIGNIFICANT," SAYS MR. WILLKIE

WHAT HE WOULD DO IF PRESIDENT

MR. WENDELL WILLKIE, Republican candidate for the Presidency, told 35,000 people at Wilmington, Delaware, yesterday that, if he were elected, a British request for 12,000 United States 'planes would "be insignificant," because production would then be geared to new heights.

"If you elected me President such a request would not even be news, because it will be so insignificant," declared Mr. Willkie. "We shall be turning out 'planes by hundreds where we are now turning them out by ones.

"Have you any doubt that Wendell Willkie, with the confidence of American industry, can do more than Franklin Roosevelt can?"

The crowd replied to the latter question by cheers.

£500,000,000 SCHEME

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

The United States War Department was reported to-day to have planned the production of the 12,000 additional bombers—largely with the help of the motor car industry. This programme is stated to be independent of the 12,000 'planes asked for by Britain. It is expected to cost some $2,000,000,000 (£500,000,000).

It is believed that the War Department proposes the erection of two large factories to assemble parts manufactured in motor factories. Whether these will be operated by the Government or the aircraft or motor car industries has not yet been decided.

3,000 'PLANES A MONTH

BRITAIN'S REQUEST TO UNITED STATES

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

It is estimated that the United States is at present sending between 250 and 300 'planes a month to Britain, and, with every effort being made to speed up production, this figure should be steadily increased.

Experts appear to agree that this is a satisfactory result, since a start was made from scratch last spring. President Roosevelt's allusion in his speech at Boston last night to Britain's request for additional 'planes refers to part of a scheme broached by British purchasing officials some weeks ago, when they inquired if it would be possible for the United States to produce 3,000 'planes a month for Britain.

Investigations showed that this was hardly feasible and would require the establishment of nearly forty new factories.

Informed American sources express the view that as increased production gets into gear resort may again be made to the system of releasing to Britain 'planes ordered for the American Air Force, later models going to the United States.

BRITAIN ORDERS FREIGHTERS

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

Mr. Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury, disclosed to-day that the British Government has ordered a "large number" of freighters from the United States. He said that he did not know whether the orders involved construction of a new shipyard in the United States for exclusive British use, but added: "The Britiish have ordered a large number of one standardised type of freight ship."

He declined to give other details.—(Press Association War Special.)

TILLAGE ORDER BAD

PLEA AT CLONMEL CIRCUIT COURT

JUDGE REMOVES DISTRICT COURT FINES

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONGFORD, Thursday.

JUDGE GLEESON, at Longford Circuit Court to-day, reversed the decision of the District Court convicting five farmers for non-compliance with the tillage order.

The defendants with the District Court penalties were: James Kenny, Antley, £70 or three months' imprisonment; James Flanagan, Killashee, £40; John McGrath, £50; James Moran, £40; Peter Hoare, £25.

In the case against James Kenny, Anthony Mannion, tillage inspector, stated that defendant held four farms containing 487 acres, of which 294 acres was arable land. He was required to till 36½ acres, but tilled only 11¼ acres up to the end of July. It would be impossible after the second week of August to sow or cultivate any crop which would mature in the same year.

Cross-examined by Mr. T. O'Dell, witness agreed that now was the proper time to till land for winter wheat.

Mr. O'Dell—Did it ever occur to you that you should take into consideration the question of a reasonable financial return for the tillage?—No.

What is the price of oats now?—Roughly, 14s. a barrel.

Do you know it is not going more than 10s. a barrel in Longford?—It was 11s. last market day.

There is no guaranteed market for oats?—There is no guaranteed market, but there is a fixed price of 14s.

Will you agree that Mr. Kenny's farm was well stocked with cattle?—Yes.

Therefore, the farm was producing food for the nation?—It was producing beef, I suppose.

Thomas Austin, supervising tillage officer, also gave evidence, and Mr. O'Dell, asking for a direction, submitted the summons was bad. It was dated 31st July, 1940, and said that in 1940 the defendant failed to do something. The word "cultivate" must be read to "till" and nothing else.

PREMATURE

Judge Gleeson—Your contention is that the proceedings are premature?

Mr. O'Dell—The conviction is bad, because the defendant was convicted of failing to do something within a time which had not expired.

Mr. O'Dell also submitted that the Minister had no power to make this order under the Emergency Powers Act. Defendant had done nothing in contravention of that Act as regards providing food. If he tilled the land it might have the reverse effect, because he would be breaking up good pasture land to grow an unprofitable crop. If the Minister wanted a compulsory tillage order he ought to have proper legislation.

Judge Gleeson said that the interpretation which the Minister sought to place upon the Order was, in his opinion, incapable of support in law. "I cannot by a purported process of interpretation import into a document having the effect of a statute something which it has not enacted and thereby turn the Court into something other than a Court—in other words, turn this Court into an attempted legislature. What I am asked to read into Paragraph 5, Sub-section 1, of the Order on which the prosecution is based, is that later than the second or third week of August it would be impossible to sow or cultivate any crops which would mature in 1940."

He held that the conviction was premature and could not be sustained in law or fact.

Having read the other summonses, Judge Gleeson said that the reasons in the case of Mr. Kenny applied to the other defendants, and the conviction in all the cases must be reversed, and the penalties, discharge costs, and expenses to be taxed.

Mr. D. Maloney (instructed by Mr. J. J. Connellan, State Solicitor) asked to have a case stated, and counsel for defendants said that they would not consent, and that there was no jurisdiction unless on consent.

Judge Gleeson said that, although he would like to give Mr. Maloney an opportunity of having the matter further discussed, he had no jurisdiction.

BRITAIN IN THE MEDITERRANEAN

ADMIRAL ADVOCATES HARD BLOW AT ITALY

ADMIRAL of the Fleet Lord Chatfield, in a broadcast speech last night, advocated striking violent blows against Italy now.

Speaking of the situation in the Mediterranean, he said he could not obviously give a comparative statement of the forces in the Mediterranean, but Britain had concentrated there a fleet under Admiral Cunningham, able by its efficiency to contain the Italian Fleet, to hold the Straits of Gibraltar and to protect the Suez Canal.

WAITING TO STRIKE

"Fighting in the narrow waters of the Mediterranean, the Fleet has had gradually to take measure of its Italian opponent, his navy, his air force, and submarines, testing their fighting capacity," said Lord Chatfield. "It is true to say that never before has a fleet had more complicated tactical responsibilities than has ours to-day in the Mediterranean.

"Italy, by invading Greece through Albania, can maintain her armies by the short sea route across the Adriatic, an easy sea for out fleet to operate in, but always there are possibilities of night action. If Italy plans to extend her operations by sea to Greek islands our fleet may be given that opportunity to strike that it has waited for.

THE WEAK SPOT

"The laws of strategy teach you to strike your enemy's weak spot with your utmost force. Italy is the enemy's weak spot, and those sea and air forces that we can spare from the defence of these islands against Germany should enable us to strike some violent blows against Italy now. Italy's object may be to divide our military forces and so weaken our resistance in Egypt. But sea and air power will be more valuable to her in Greece than a large army sent to Salonika, with all that means in transport and supply.

"The waters of Greece are no new battle ground for us. Thanks to Greek hospitality our fleet has for years exercised there. Harbours and islands have valuable strategic points well known to sailors, which we shall, doubtless, use. But one must remember that bases cannot be improvised so simply or so rapidly as before, for they have to be defended against air and submarine attacks.

"It is too early in Italy's new adventure, however, to discuss such matters."

THE SEA ROUTES

Speaking of attacks on British convoys, Lord Chatfield said:—"It is well to realise that the range of bases now available to the enemy enables his submarines to attack our convoys and shipping in the North Atlantic much further afield than formerly. This has given him an advantage he has never had before. The counter to it is more escorting vessels and improved methods.

"The addition to our Navy of fifty American destroyers will go a long way towards meeting what may well be an increasing threat to our shipping. If we maintain the sea routes for our convoys we cannot be beaten. It is now, as ever, our most serious problem."

CHANNEL PORTS RAIDED

HEAVY DAMAGE AT FLUSHING

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

MANY tons of high explosive bombs and hundreds of incendiaries were dropped on Wednesday night on the German-occupied ports of Flushing and Antwerp, and on Emden, the westernmost seaport of Germany.

The attack on Flushing began early in the evening, and lasted for just over an hour.

Several sticks of bombs were dropped on the Walcheren Canal and on the inner and outer havens, and though cloud and haze made it difficult to see the full results of the bombing, one huge fire which was started between two of the docks could be seen from 55 miles away.

At Antwerp explosions and fires were reported in the harbour area. At Emden bursts were observed on a quay of the main waterway and in the large V-shaped harbour to the east of the main entrance. One very bright fire was started, and other fires in the area were seen to spread rapidly.

One aircraft attacked a nearby railway junction, and here again a large fire occurred.

The British Air Ministry News Service states that a small force of Coastal Command and Blenheims struck at targets in Ostend harbour which had previously been attacked and since repaired by the Germans. Easy identifications of their objectives enabled the bombers to secure direct hits freely on the quays and shipping berths.

Every second bomb was followed by heavy explosions, and the crews could see débris being thrown high in the air.

LIBYA AND ERITREA

MILITARY BUILDINGS ON FIRE

Aircraft of the R.A.F. raided Bardia and Tobruk, Libya, yesterday (Wednesday). At Bardia the attack was made on a stores dump, and many bombs were seen to hit the target, starting a large fire, which was visible for 30 miles, and completely destroying the dump, says a Press Association War Special.

At Tobruk bombs fell in a target area. A raid on Peclezan (Eritrea) resulted in a number of fires being started among military buildings, while at Massawa warehouses were heavily bombed. The military camp and railway compound at Keren (Eritrea) were also raided. Bombs were dropped on the camp, and the railway compound was straddled by bombs, causing considerable damage.

Aircraft of the South African Air Force attacked the military camp at Lugh Ferandi (Italian Somaliland) on Tuesday. Bombs were dropped among buildings in the target area. Other units of the South African Air Force carried out a number of reconnaissance flights over Italian territory.

Other reconnaissance flights were carried out by the Royal Air Force over Greek and Italian coastal waters. During one of these a Cant Z506 was encountered and shot down in flames.

SOME SIDE-LIGHTS ON THE WAR IN GREECE

BY OUR MILITARY CORRESPONDENT.

THE British Admiralty announcement as to the mining of Greek waters is interesting, as affording a quite useful line as to what the naval position is now likely to be. Briefly, the zones named cover the gulfs—that of Patras, with its inner Corinthian extension on the west; that of Ægina (Saronic Gulf) on the east. The three big islands—Leukas, Kephalonia and Zante—make an admirable bulwark for the former. Leukas is very close to Prevesa, so that it seems likely that the left flank of the land front will be covered by the Gulf of Arta.

This disposition ensures to the Allies the use of the Corinth Canal, with its resultant saving of 100 miles steaming. This canal will take any warship up to a medium cruiser. For example of British ships, a "Town Class" ship could use it, but a "County Class" could not. All the Greek ships can use it, except the Averoff, which might nearly be called a "pocket" battle-cruiser. The mined area further includes the Salamis navy-yard, on the island of the same name in the Gulf of Ægina. Two destroyers are in course of construction there at the moment—how far advanced is not certain.

It now transpires that the Greek cruiser-minelayer Helle—described in these notes last Wednesday—had been torpedoed some time before by an Italian submarine. She is a distinct loss to the Greeks. Her silhouette was not unlike those of some British light cruisers and large destroyers.

TURKEY'S POSITION

Turkey's position in the Italo-Greek conflict has now become clearer. She has virtually undertaken to enter the struggle if Bulgaria makes any move towards the Aegean seaports, Kavalla and Dedeagatch. This, in itself, is a very real relief to the Greeks, because it removes any immediate anxiety about their right flank in the Salonika region. This the Italians must now attack frontally across the Pindus Mountains—for Yugoslavia is hardly likely to permit Italian divisions to outflank the Greeks via Monastir or the Vardar Valley. There has been a further Turkish report to the effect that eight Greek divisions are opposed to eleven Italian. If this can be taken as roughly correct, it would certainly indicate something much nearer to a local numerical equality than might have been expected. An advantage of less than three to two is not much in a terrain so difficult as that of Epirus and Macedonia, where superior equipment—in the shape of tanks and aircraft—cannot give its best return.

Of direct Turkish participation there is yet no sign, although the Army is said to be coming up to full strength. The Turkish Fleet would be another windfall for Britain very similar to the Greek. The modern ships are: The battle-cruiser Yavuz, no other than a very old acquaintance, the Goeben! She has been very fully overhauled, and is still a most formidable ship (23,000 tons, 10 11in. and 10 6in. guns, 25½ knots). There are four destroyers of Italian construction (1,250 tons, 4 4.7in. guns, 6 21in. torpedo tubes, 36-38 knots). Four more, a little bigger, were under construction in Britain at the outbreak of war, so have probably been taken over. There are eight good, modern submarines of sea-going type—three German-built and one, to German design, built in Spain; two Italian, including a big minelayer, and two in Holland. And there is the usual quota of fleet auxiliaries. There is also a respectable dockyard at Ismid, safely on the right side of the Sea of Marmora.

ATTITUDE OF RUSSIA

As to the attitude of Russia, there have been a few straws, though their value as wind-gauges is problematic. The first is the report of 45 bombing 'planes and 89 fighters being supplied to Greece. The nearness of Russia and the comparative safety of transport thence make her a particularly useful source of supply in this theatre. The second straw was the recurrence of the Ukraine invasion rumour that we have heard so much about at one time or another. The Turkish report that Germany has seventy divisions earmarked for South-eastern Europe renders the idea less fantastic this time.

As to the actual fighting, it is too soon as yet to make much comment. The Italians claim that their troops advancing into Epirus "have reached the River Kalamas at various points." The Kalamas flows roughly parallel to the Græco-Albanian frontier, at a distance of 10-15 miles to the south-east thereof. It is not a serious obstacle, in a general way, except in the rainy season—which has hardly set in yet, though it may soon. It can, however, be a useful obstacle to mechanised units, the banks being mostly rocky and steep, and in some places marshy. With reference to the more important strategic points in the forward Greek zone, the Kalamas lies approximately half-way between the frontier and the Janina-Parga line. It flows into the Corfu Channel rather more than half-way down. The Italians are said to be using two divisions along the coast on this sector.

On the other front—the Macedonian one—there is nothing definite said. Heavy Italian gunfire has been heard. A Salonika report claimed 800 Italian prisoners—which, if true, would indicate a local reverse. There is, however, no confirmation of this rumour. The Italians, of the advance generally, mention "adverse weather conditions" and "obstacles created by the enemy in retreat." This, at all events, indicates sound Greek defensive measures to date—plus the fact that the weather is favouring them so far.

MALTING BARLEY

PRICE FOR 1941 CROP FIXED

An agreement that Messrs. Guinness and Co. would pay from 29s. 6d. to 30s. 6d. per barrel of 16 stone for malting barley from the 1941 crop was made at a meeting of a delegation of the Grain Committee of the Sugar Beet Growers' Association and representatives of Messrs. Guinness at St. James's Gate yesterday.

This price is exactly equivalent to that guaranteed by the Government for the same weight of wheat. The company bought 500,000 barrels, or an increase of 100,000 barrels on the amount bought last autumn. As far as can be ascertained the amount required next season will not exceed 400,000 barrels.

The Grain Committee of the Sugar Beet Association was represented by Mr. William Mullins (chairman), Senator William O'Callaghan, Messrs. John N. Greene, John Seymour, John Donoboe, Martin J. Corry, T.D.; A. M. Fahy (secretary). Messrs. Guinness were represented by Mr. T. B. Case, Sir Haldane Porter, Messrs. A. Jackson and A. H. Carlyle.

FEWER AIR RAIDS YESTERDAY

LONDON'S EARLY "ALL CLEAR"

PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.

LONDON, Thursday.

Lone German raiders which made spasmodic attacks in some areas this afternoon raked streets with machine-gun fire. When a village near a Midland town was gunned late in the afternoon two men had narrow escapes. The 'plane also dropped some bombs.

Bullets penetrated the roofs of buildings and sprayed a car park when another Midlands town was similarly gunned. A commercial building on the outskirts of the town was machine-gunned, but only one woman was slightly injured. These isolated raiders also dropped a few bombs, but casualties were small, and the damage was slight.

Four people were killed and a number injured in a morning raid on a South-East inland town. A lone raider released high-explosive bombs from a height of only a few hundred feet.

To-night's "alert" sounded in the London area earlier than during the past few days. The earlier phase of it was quiet.

'Planes were overhead frequently in the early stages of the raid. The anti-aircraft barrage, however, was very heavy, and they did not loiter. The majority of the 'planes seemed to drop only one bomb.

A "Molotoff breadbasket" fell in one London district, and scattered over a wide area, including a sports ground. All the incendiaries were extinguished within ten minutes by people living in the neighbourhood.

After a period of quiet, the "Raiders Passed" signal was sounded at the earliest hour since the intensive night raids began early in Sepetmber.

NOTEWORTHY PLACES DAMAGED

It was announced to-day that among places which have been damaged in recent air raids were the centre court at Wimbledon and the competitors stand. The stand was wrecked by a direct hit. Débris was flung on to the centre court, but the damage to the turf has been repaired.

Leicester square suffered from a high explosive.

GERMAN REPORT

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

BERLIN, Thursday.

The official German News Agency claims to-night that German bombers successfully attacked an aerodrome north of London this afternoon. After asserting that a number of 'planes on the ground was completely destroyed by bombs, it states:—

"The German aircraft then made a machine-gun attack on some thirty twin-engine 'planes on the aerodrome, and it is assumed that most of them were put out of action."

It is also claimed that in South-West London a marshalling yard was hit and a large factory severely damaged.

"Fires and explosions were observed in the city," the Agency says.

ALLEGED BRIBE TO COUNCILLOR

CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT CHARGE

LONGFORD COTTAGE TENANCIES

BRIAN KIERNAN, Carrickduff, Dring, Granard, was acquitted at Longford Circuit Court of charges under the Corrupt Practices Act of receiving sums of £2 and £1, respectively, from Mrs. Mary Kate Maguire, Granard, and John Frizell, Cartions, Granard, as a fee or reward for promising to obtain for them the tenancies of labourers' cottages at Prospect and Springtown.

Mrs. Maguire stated that, on 26th November, 1938, having asked the defendant, as a member of the Longford Board of Health, to get her a cottage, she paid him £2. He then said: "This is £2. I will have nothing out of this, as I will have to give £1 each to two members of the Board of Health." As she did not get the cottage in Prospect, she asked the return of the money from Kiernan in October, 1939. She did not get it, and issued a process for the amount. In the meantime, Kiernan paid her £1, and a decree for £2, crediting £1, was made at Granard District Court.

John Frizell said that he paid £1 to Kiernan in Granard on the strength of his promise to vote for him at the Board of Health to get him the cottage at Springtown. Witness did not get the cottage, and demanded the return of his money. He afterwards obtained a decree for the amount at Granard District Court.

DEFENDANT'S EVIDENCE

Brian Kiernan, the defendant, denied that he received £2 from Mrs Maguire, and said that he had lent money to her on the occasion of her husband's death to pay for a coffin. She still owed him 10s. of that loan. He had had a conversation with her with reference to getting her the tenancy of a house, and introduced an agreement for her tenancy of a house belonging to his cousin, and which she refused to sign. On the date she alleged that she gave him the £2, in Granard town he was in Longford town all day, and remembered that by the fact that there was a meeting of the County Committee of Agriculture there. He stated that when he got a solicitor's letter demanding £1 to be paid to Frizell he did not know what it meant, and when he met Frizell the latter said he was sorry about it, as he was drunk at the time he gave the instructions.

Regarding his absence from the District Court on the day the decrees were given against him, he said that he had instructed his solicitor to appear in Court, and on the morning of the Court his wife was ill and he had to accompany her to a Dublin hospital.

Michael Caulfield stated that on the 26th November, the day that Kiernan was alleged to have been paid £2 by Mrs. Maguire in Granard, he was with Kitrnan to Longford that morning, cycling and accompanied him home in the evening.

The jury found the defendant not guilty.

ENNIS DIRECTORS REMANDED

CONVERSION OF MONEY ALLEGED

ENNIS, Thursday.

At a special court in Ennis to-day, before District Justice Gleeson, Walter Chapman, of Bindon street, Ennis, managing director of L. Jordan, Ltd. (Ennis Braid Mills), and Ted Town, of Braunistane, Leicester, were charged with applying to their own use £1,895 and with attempting to apply £3,938 10s. 2d., the property of the firm. Chapman was further charged with applying to his own use the sum of £11,536 5s. 8d., knowing that it belonged to the firm.

Superintendent P. H. Casey stated that when charged and cautioned Mr. Chapman simply nodded his head and Mr. Town said that he reserved his defence. Mr. E. Monahan, solicitor for the accused men, was present, and stated that they were not guilty. Witness was still making inquiries into the case and applied for a remand until Thursday next.

The application for a remand was granted, and Mr. Chapman was admitted to bail, himself in £10,000 and three sureties of £2,500 each. The sureties were Mr. M. McMahon, Trinaderry; Mr. M. Kennedy, and Mr. J. Considine, P.C., Ennis. When they had signed the bail bonds Mr. Chapman was released from custody.

The Justice reminded the sureties that if anything went wrong the bonds would be estreated in the full amounts.

Bail for Mr. Town was fixed at £5,000 and two sureties of £2,500. Pending the obtaining of the two sureties he was removed to Limerick Prison.

Mr. M. J. Walshe, State Solicitor, prosecuted.

Give them a fair chance in life!

THE strain of school tasks on mind and body is very real to a child. The very food elements their growing bodies need most are the first to be used up. Lack of even one of these essentials in childhood may well endanger health in years to come. Lack of calcium in the teeth, for example, can never wholly be made good in later life.

That is why children need extra care, extra nourishment, during their school days. That is why they need Scott's Emulsion. Rich in vitamins and tonic hypophosphites Scott's Emulsion supplies fats as well—fats in the form of cod liver oil made so scientifically digestible that in 30 minutes every drop has gone to enrich the blood, maintain vitality and build body, bone and brain.

Scott's Emulsion is the complete FOOD EXTRA, nourishing, strengthening and protecting right through the danger years. A regular course now cannot fail to give your children the very best chance in life. But, it must be genuine.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

NEW CLONMEL HOUSES

FORMALLY OPENED BY MINISTER

WORK OF CORPORATION PRAISED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CLONMEL, Thursday.

MR. P. J. RUTTLEDGE, Minister for Local Government, to-day opened Clonmel Corporation's thirty-two new houses at Father Mathew terrace.

The Minister was met on arrival by the Right Rev. Monsignor Dean Byrne, P.P., V.G.; the Mayor (Councillor John Condon), Mr. Commissioner Naughten, the County Medical Officer, the architects (Messrs. B. J. Kilbride and James Walsh) and other representative citizens.

A guard of honour of armed and uniformed members of the Local Security Force, under Mr. James Nugent, formed at the Town Hall, where an address of welcome was presented by the Corporation.

The address, which was read by Mr. Liam McLoughlin, Town Clerk, emphasised the anxiety of the Corporation to proceed with further housing schemes. Though 596 houses had been provided to date, of which 368 had been built since 1932, much had still to be done before normal requirements were satisfied, and before the remaining slum areas, as well as many isolated insanitary houses in the borough were finally cleared. A difficulty in proceeding with the Corporation's housing plans was the high cost of building materials, so that houses could not be let at rents within the means of tenants, and the Corporation felt that unless the subsidies under the 1932 Act were extended to cover the all-in cost per house their building programme must be seriously hampered, if not completely discontinued

WORKS NEEDED

The address also urged the need for proceeding with a main drainage scheme for the town, and asked the Minister to help in securing substantial contributions for the relief of unemployment which could be devoted to this work. Other proposals which the Corporation would like to bring under the Minister's notice of the extension of and improvements to Clonmel Mental Hospital, and the erection of a new district hospital and public health clinic.

Replying to the address of welcome, Mr. Ruttledge said that he was willing and desirous to help a Corporation such as that of Clonmel, which had shown itself active, energetic and enthusiastic over a long number of years. The Corporation had a lot of leeway to make up in housing in 1922, but they tackled the problem in a way that showed their determination to solve it. They had almost wiped out the slums in the town. He promised to have the matter of the proposed sewerage scheme examined again, and said that he would be as sympathetic as he could to works that would give employment. With regard to the hospitals, the Minister said:—"We have pushed as far as we can. There are difficulties arising from the emergency, difficulties about having to curtail funds and having to be more careful about them."

PRIVATE BUILDING

Replying to welcoming speeches at a subsequent luncheon given by the contractors, Messrs. Roche, Morrissey and Kennedy, the Minister said that the people in the Local Government Department were actuated by something more than the desire of doing their work. They had a sincere desire to find a solution to the housing problem. Returns published recently showed that houses built and reconstructed since 1932 numbered 98,000.

He regretted that more people did not avail themselves of the generous provisions made under the Act for building by private individuals or public utility societies. If these were used to a greater extent it would relieve considerably the local authorities of work which would probably fall on them later on. It would also be much better if local authorities would avail themselves of the powers they have to compel landlords to put houses from which they drew rent into proper healthy and habitable condition.

THE STATE AND THE UNIVERSITY

TRINITY COLLEGE SOCIETY PAPER

SENATOR MacDERMOT'S VIEWS

"I THINK it is a calamity that there should be one University in Dublin to which only Catholics go, and another University to which people would wish only Protestants went." said Senator Frank MacDermot, speaking last night at the opening meeting in Trinity College of the University Philosophical Society.

THE PAPER

Senator MacDermot was speaking to a paper on "University," given by the President of the Society, Mr. R. J. Harvey, Sch. (Mod.), who suggested that if anything more socially just were desired in the university system there should be increased endowment of universities on the part of the State, so that they might offer support to every youth of ability, irrespective of means. He further suggested that the nationalisation of the university system was not a necessary corollary of adequate endowment. It seemed illogical, he said, that any university should be a denominational.

A denominational institution hardly could deserve the name of a University, for such an institution implied the limitation of entrants to members of one religion, and a probable limitation of studies to suit the official university religion. Both limitations denied the essential meaning of the term—university. The cause of a mutual tolerance would be greatly advanced by a free mixing of every religion in university life.

OPEN TO ALL

Senator MacDermot said that Universities should welcome all sorts of people into their halls, people from all countries, people of all religions. They had not got in Ireland anything that could be described as a strictly denominational university, but he was very sorry that the scheme never came to anything under which the two Dublin universities would have been constituent colleges of one university, with a great many lecturers working on the same subjects, and with the undergraduates meeting constantly in their work and in their sport. There were certain subjects on which separate Chairs would be necessary—like modern history, philosophy, etc.—but he saw no reason why there should not be two sets of such subjects. He certainly thought that the Catholics at the end of the 18th century were right when they sought a single university for all denominations in the country.

Commenting on the necessity for freedom from State control, the Senator said that they were fortunate in having the distinguished Professor Schroedinger on their Advanced Studies Council, because he felt that learning needed an atmosphere of freedom, and if the time ever came when universities would be State institutions, when the State would dictate to the universities, it would be a poor day for the future of the country and for learning. In America, too, many universities were State controlled and there was a tendency to manage them in a political manner.

THE VALUE OF TRINITY

Dr. Robert Collis, asking what was the value of Trinity to Ireland, said that Trinity had been called all sorts of names, including that of "an English University in Ireland," and a "Protestant University in a Catholic country." Some of its greatest sons had been called Anglo-Irishmen as a term of insult by gentlemen of confused minds. If to be accounted one like Yeats, Moore or Shaw was to be called an Anglo-Irishman, he, for one, would be quite prepared to be insulted so.

"This Anglo-Irish business," he said, "is pretty good nonsense sometimes, but, as a matter of fact, Trinity is one of the most Irish things in Ireland—not in Eire, not Catholic, not Gaelic; but in Ireland, Catholic, Protestant, and Gaelic, Dane, Norman, English, Scots—an Ireland where there is no border, where you may be anything from ultra red through orange to ultra green. Trinity of the present is part of the soul of Dublin."

Mr. Denis Johnston and Mr. Peadar O'Donnell also spoke.

The Provost of Trinity College presided, and the Most Rev. Dr. Barton, Archbishop of Dublin, was present.

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS

The Society's gold medal for oratory was presented to Mr. R. J. Harvey, Sch. (Mod.), and the silver medal to Mr. W. J. White, Sch., certificates of merit being received by Mr. G. F. Parker (Mod.) and Mr. H. C. Norminton. The President's gold medal for composition was presented to Mr. R. O. V. Lloyd, Sch. (Mod.), and the Society's silver medal to Mr. S. A. Moore, Sch. (Mod.), B.A., with certificates of merit to Mr. M. C. Fowler, Sch. (Mod.) and Mr. E. U. Udoma.

BELFAST SHOOTING AFFAIR

MAN RETURNED FOR TRIAL

The story of the shooting of a police sergeant and a young man was described in the Belfast Custody Court yesterday, when Thomas Byrne was charged with shooting and wounding Sergeant J. P. Lynch with intent to murder; shooting at Constable Robert Reid with intent to murder; being in possession of firearms and ammunition, and being in possession of explosives.

Sergeant Lynch, Leopold street Barracks, said that on September 20 he was in Havana street talking to Constables Reid and Boyd. As the result of information he received he gave certain instructions to the constables. He cycled down Havana street, Flax street, to Butler street, looking for armed men who had held up two local post offices that morning. He saw three men at the door of a small shop at 107 Butler street. The men looked towards witness and darted into No. 107.

"I got off my bicycle, drew my revolver and shouted: Halt or I will fire,' and went into the house after them. I saw a man named McLarnon, the owner of the house, about two paces inside the front door. He was in his shirt sleeves. I pushed him aside with my right hand and I then saw the man in the dock. He was standing in a room at the back of the shop. He was pointing a revolver at me. He fired a shot at me which struck me on the left temple. Witness then fired at the accused man, who ran towards the back door, stooping.

The witness said there was another man there and he ran the same way. Witness fired three more shots at them.

The witness's frock and waterproof coat were produced, and he said that when he got to the barracks he found that they had been pierced on the left shoulder by a bullet. He subsequently found that his left shoulder had been grazed by a bullet. He was detained from September 20 until October 7 in the Mater Hospital as a result of the wound in his head.

Accused—You say I pointed a gun at you and fired?—Yes.

You seen me in the house firing?—Yes.

When did you make up that story?—You are sitting there telling a tissue of lies.

The Witness—I am telling what happened.

The accused man was returned for trial to the next Belfast Commission.

REFUGEES

A special meeting of the Dublin Trades Union Council has unanimously passed a resolution pledging the Council's support to the Government in extending hospitality to women and children from bombed areas "in belligerent countries outside Eire." The resolution further pledges the Council to establish a bureau of persons willing to offer such hospitality, either for a period "at parents' pleasure" or "for the duration of the conflict."

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND

SYNOD OF CORK, CLOYNE AND ROSS

BISHOP ON RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Thursday.

The annual Synod of the United Dioceses of Cork, Cloyne and Ross met at the Gregg Hall, Cork, to-day, the Bishop (the Right Rev. Dr. Hearn) presiding.

The Bishop, welcoming the members, said that he felt that their first thoughts should be of thankfulness to God that they met in peace, and that their country had been spared the tragedy of war. They thanked God, and their earnest prayer should be that the hearts of men might be moved to penitence, and that God would be merciful and lead mankind into the paths of a true and lasting peace.

The report of the Diocesan Council, he said, called for no special mention. The financial condition of the diocese was, in his opinion, very satisfactory. He had visited nearly every parish in the United Diocese, and had learned much of the conditions of the diocese as a whole.

TOO FEW CURATES

They had too few curates, and he would ask the Synod to authorise the appointment of a second diocesan curate. He would like this curate to work in St. Nicholas's Parish, under Canon Darling—a splendid sphere for work. It was very desirable that the diocese should train its own curates. In the city they had certainly too many churches, and it was a matter that should be faced. What was still more important was the fact that there were too many schools in the city. Nothing would prove of greater good for the children than to have two or three well-equipped, up-to-date schools, instead of five. If the managers of the city schools would agree upon such a scheme it would be done.

The Bishop paid a cordial tribute to the work of the Diocesan Board of Education, mentioning Captain Horne and Mr. Good, in particular. He could not speak too highly of their work in providing funds for the transport scheme. Yet the debt had increased from £82 to £237 on December 31, 1939. He had, at the request of the Board, issued an appeal for more funds, and he hoped the extra money required would be forthcoming; if not, then the Board would reluctantly have to reduce the number of transport schemes now in operation. The religious education of their children was vital; who could doubt it, beholding the world as it was to-day. In what kind of world those children would be called on to work nobody could tell, but they did know that it would be a very different world. It was a duty to help to prepare for those difficult days by giving the children a good religious education, and showing in their own lives what a religious education meant.

THE CHURCH'S RESPONSIBILITY

"When I speak of this awful cruel war," continued the Bishop, "I cannot help asking what responsibility has the Church of Christ for the present state of affairs. We speak of this war as a judgment of God, and it certainly is, but let there be no doubt in any of our minds that that judgment falls heavily on the Church of Christ. To that body was committed the Gospel of Christ—the goodness of love, peace, good-will—and if the Church had been faithful to its trust in proclaiming that Gospel the present conflagration would never have been.

"If the democratic system is to continue it must show a more vital Christian spirit than it has ever done before. The spirit of Christ must permeate the whole society, rich and poor alike, and mould it into a fellowship which seeks the spiritual as well as the bodily welfare of all.

DARK DAYS

"Dark days lie ahead whether we as a people are drawn into the conflict or not. In any case, we are intimately affected by the issue. All who put their trust in God can have no doubt of the ultimate result. God's eternal purpose for man must prevail over the powers of evil, however great."

The bishop concluded by impressing on all clergy and laity the necessity for constant prayer, both in private and in public worship.

The report of the Diocesan Council was adopted.

The report of the Board for Overseas Missions was proposed by the Dean of Cork, seconded by Captain Newenham, and adopted, as was the report of the Board of Education, on the motion of the Dean of Ross.

The report of the Temperance Social Welfare Society was adopted on the motion of Mr. G. Bird.

FIRE AT BLACKROCK

PREPARATORY SCHOOL DAMAGED

A fire broke out yesterday morning at Willow Park Preparatory School, a branch of Blackrock College, and destroyed two rooms and part of the roof. The prompt arrival of the Dun Laoghaire Fire Brigade, under the command of Captain Martin and Lieutenant P. Whelan, saved the building from destruction.

The only occupant of the building was the caretaker, who was sleeping far from the scene of the blaze. The brigade laid down four lines of hose, and the fire was prevented from spreading. It is estimated that damage to the extent of hundreds of pounds was caused by the fire.

The President of the College and the staff were loud in their praise for the work done by the Fire Brigade.

BELVEDERE NEWSBOYS' CLUB

The Belvedere Newsboys' Club, 198 Pearse street, Dublin, holds its annual Flag-days appeal this week. In the twenty-four years of its existence the Belvedere Newsboys' Club has done good work for the poorest and most neglected of Dubliners—the newsboys of the city. The Club opened with twenty boys on its roll, and there are now more than three hundred.

The boys attend the Club on three nights each week, play games, read books, have classes in Irish, English, history and arithmetic, have supper, say their prayers and go home. Other activities of the Club are swimming, football, excursions to the seaside, parties at Christmas, singing classes, etc. Last year 14 tons of coal, as well as shirts, socks, pullovers were distributed to the boys, but the most important part of the Club's work is the establishing of personal friendships between the helpers in the Club and these poor friendless waifs of the streets.

G.S.R. DISPUTE

CONFERENCE ARRANGED BY MINISTER

In an effort to avert the threatened strike of railway shopmen in the employment of the Great Southern Railways Company, the Minister for Industry and Commerce has convened a meeting between representatives of the trades unions concerned and of the company, to be held at the Department of Industry and Commerce this afternoon.

In view of the Minister's intervention, it is expected that strike action due to take place on Monday may be postponed, even should there be no definite agreement reached at the conference.

About 1,600 workers would be directly effected should the strike notice come into operation.

MILK AS A SOURCE OF INFECTION

RUNNING through the "Irish Times" interviews regarding Dr. Mushatt's statements on the prevalence of bovine tuberculosis and the danger to human beings of milk from infected cows, there is a feeling that the Milk and Dairies Act is not operating as had been expected. Here are further expressions of opinion:—

How the entire problem of bovine tuberculosis had been thrashed out fourteen years ago when the Irish Clean Milk Society had brought the matter to the notice of the Government was described to an Irish Times representative by Dr. Spencer Sheill, F.R.C.P.S.I., who, in 1926, gave evidence before the Milk Commission at Government Buildings.

In that year, said Dr. Sheill, he had proved conclusively to the Commission that thousands of valuable young lives were lost yearly, and many others blighted in the bud by diseases which could be directly traced to contaminated milk.

Although not in complete agreement with the system of pasteurisation, Dr. Sheill is of the opinion that it is the next best thing to destroying the affected animals, and restocking with certified cattle, which is the only means of making certain of germ free milk. "In fact," he told our representative, "pasteurisation is the only method which could be employed during war time, when there might be a shortage of food."

When questioned about the presence of tubercle bacilli in butter, Dr. Sheill said that this was no longer just a fantastic idea, but a definite truth. Experts had proved, he said, that if tubercle bacilli were active in cream they would be equally active in the butter, because there was nothing sterilising in the process of butter-making.

Referring to Dr. Cecil Mushatt's article on "Human Tuberculosis and the Bovine Type of Tubercle Bacillus in Eire," Dr. Kathleen G. McColgan Barry, County M.O.H., Kilkenny, said that pasteurisation would not be really effective until suppliers of milk to creameries were brought under supervision. "There should be some legislation to allow supervision over creamery suppliers," she said. "As the law stands, they can use milk as they like and use any animals they like."

SKIM MILK

She said that she was very keen on pasteurisation of skim milk, as it is used by a big number of people. It would be a good thing if the Government would allow them to have frequent bacteriological tests of registered herds. "As far as Kilkenny City is concerned," she added, "a big number of people are safe from milk infection because they cannot afford to pay the present prices for ungraded milk. It is a scandal that, owing to the price of milk in Kilkenny, parents are prevented from buying sufficient milk for their children." It was obvious to anybody who knew anything about farming, she said, that milk vendors in Kilkenny, at any rate, were not stall-feeding their milch cows, and the recent increases in the retail price of milk on the grounds of increased cost of production were a scandal. The price fixed for milk in Kilkenny is 1s. 8d. a gallon for October and 2s. a gallon for the winter period, commencing November 1st.

SOMETHING DONE

Dr. J. B. O'Regan, County Medical Officer of Health, North Tipperary, said that steps for the protection of the public health are in their infancy in this country, particularly in regard to the production of clean milk, and it was not until the Milk and Dairies Act, 1935, came into operation that this problem received the attention it so justly deserved. The passing of this Act has gone a long way to ensure that milk sold for public consumption is got from healthy cows and produced by clean methods. The veterinary surgeons and sanitary inspectors who administer the Act make periodic inspections of the herds and premises of registered dealers.

The majority of producers have had to incur a great deal of expense in order to carry out the structural alterations made necessary by this Act, and even though they have been compensated by an increased price for the milk produced this price is not sufficient to allow them to meet the heavy demands that the keeping of a tuberculin-free herd would entail. No doubt, as time goes on and as public opinions demands it, we shall see quite a number of such herds established throughout the country, but this demand will always be greater near the larger centres of population.

I should like to see the pasteurisation of all separated milk returned from the creameries. I am of the opinion that this would lead to a decreased morbidity and mortality from tuberculous disease among calves and pigs, with a consequent greater financial return to the farmer. It may thus be made easier for him to improve his premises and herd to a standard in keeping with the requirements for the production of a safe milk supply.

HOSPITAL'S EXPERIENCE

Dealing with the work done at St. Ultan's Hospital for Infants (Teac Ultain), Charlemont street, Dublin, Miss ffrench-Mullen, secretary, said that her medical staff agreed with Dr. Mushatt that the bovine type of bacillus is the cause of much suffering and many deaths, and that the danger of such infection could be avoided if all milk from non-tuberculin-tested herds were boiled.

Our experience, however, gained by the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis in children under five years, which is the main milk-drinking age, is that tuberculous meningitis and bone and joint tuberculosis are mostly caused by the human type of bacillus.

We have been able, in our extern tuberculosis dispensary and in our fresh-air tuberculosis ward of eight cots, to reduce our death-rate from tuberculosis in infants under one year from 77 per cent. in 1937 to 28 per cent in 1940; at this age children are particularly vulnerable, and the death-rate from 1-5 years is much lower. This has been achieved by finding the cases and treating them at an early stage of the first lung infection, so that further spread from lung to bone, joint and brain can be prevented. From this experience we consider that the majority, if not all, cases of non-pulmonary tuberculosis due to the human bacillus could be avoided; according to Dr. Mushatt's investigation this would comprise 75 per cent. of all cases of tuberculosis meningitis and 82 per cent. of cases of bone and joint tuberculosis in children. At the same time, no effort should be spared to prevent the sale of milk infected by tubercle bacilli.

OUTSTANDING RACES AT NAAS

Cameron's Chance to Make Amends

THE November Handicap and the Grand National Qualifying Plate are outstanding events on to-day's card at Naas, where big fields and attractive racing are promised. Cameron, who finished second to The Gripper in the Irish Cesarewitch, has Tote Double on Fourth and Fifth Races.

here a chance to make amends for that narrow defeat by winning the November Handicap. There are many others also with obvious chances, such as Mr. W. Barnett's pair, Avena and Bold Maid; Delage, Falkirk and Ajar. Recent form, however, points to having the measure of these, and Mr. E. Harmsworth's colt is named as the likely winner. Avena may be the chief danger to him.

The Galway Plate winner, Ring of Gold, who ran remarkably well in the Irish Cesarewitch, looks to be the pick of the eleven runners for the Grand National Qualifying Plate, and he may have most to fear from Doitagain. Avatea showed smart form when finishing second to Chinese Legend at Leopardstown, and must take a lot of beating in the Ruanbeg Hurdle. Selections:—

Mountjoy Plate—On Time.
November Handicap—Cameron.

CURRAGH SELECTIONS

CURRAGH, Thursday.

Most teams were on the easy list this morning with the exception of horses engaged at Naas. Cameron went well with His Highness, and should win the November Handicap. Avena travelled like a winner with D. Rogers's team, and must be the chief danger. H. M. Hartigan's J.W. shows promise and will want beating for the Kildangan Plate. Selections:—

Ruanbeg Plate—Grant.
Mountjoy Plate—Singing Knight.
November Handicap—Cameron.

OLD BELVEDERE MAY PROVE TOO GOOD FOR QUEEN'S

THERE is a big senior programme of eight matches to-morrow, of which five are taking place in Dublin. The travellers are University College, Dublin, who meet University College, Cork, at the Mardyke; Monkstown, who will be in opposition to North of Ireland in Belfast, and Blackrock College, who go to Limerick for their annual encounter with Garryowen.

There are some especially good matches in town, the most attractive being at Jones's road, where Old Belvedere entertain Queen's University. Although beaten by Wanderers at Lansdowne road a fortnight ago, Queen's played far more open football than their conquerors, and some of their three-quarter movements were brilliant. Old Belvedere will always respond to this type of play, being concentrating on attack themselves, and with the confidence gained by their first victory last week, some excellent play can be anticipated from Morgan, the various Quinns and McNelis. Since the Belvedere pack is becoming a real force now, Queens' may pay another unsuccessful visit to Dublin.

Lansdowne v. Trinity

Even though Trinity have an indifferent record up to date, they are playing bright football, and any improvement in their pack ought to give them a chance of beating Lansdowne at Lansdowne road. The latter are having their best season for some time, and are a solid, evenly-balanced lot, but unless the forwards can gain a superiority in the tight scrums, the backs will have their hands full with Carry, de Lacy, McIntyre and Doyle, who played such great football on Wednesday.

Clontarf and Wanderers will have a stern forward battle at Castle avenue, and whether the individual power of F. G. Moran will offset the better combination of the Wanderers' backs is a matter for speculation. So far, Moran has been the main factor in Clontarf's victories, and when he has been closely watched, as he was against both St. Mary's and Bective, the side does not do so well. The Wanderers' backs are stronger in defence than attack, but A. B. Robertson's drop-kicking and place-kicking are a source of danger to any opposition. Wanderers, the better-balanced side, may add to their list of victories.

Even though their backs do not look a convincing lot, Bective have put up some extremely good performances, and they should prove too strong behind the scrum for Old Wesley at Donnybrook. Even though they did surprise Clontarf, St. Mary's have decided limitations behind the scrum which were shown up by Old Belvedere last week, the latter beating them by a comfortable margin; but they should return to winning vein to-morrow at Clonskeagh, for they seem to be slightly stronger than Palmerston forward, and, individually, their backs have more penetration.

Blackrock Changes

The hundred per cent. team, Blackrock College, make their second successive journey to the South, and they are fielding several substitutes for their match against Garryowen. J. Westby will be full back instead of D. G. O'Leary, T. Cribben and L. O'Brien come on for Chamberlain and McMahon, and, in the absence of Ferris, R. Eager will be scrum-half. K. Keenan, S. Morrison and E. Ryan cannot travel in the pack. Garryowen, the Munster Cup-holders, are no easy proposition at the Markets Field, and they may break Blackrock's record; but the Dublin team are fortunate in having good reserve players, and they will make a strong effort to maintain their victorious career.

With their splendid pack—possibly the best in Dublin at present—University College will be well equipped to tackle their Cork University rivals, who have a sound but not a brilliant team. A Dublin win seems likely; they will have C. Nolan out again at full back, but the centre three-quarter partner for P. O'Donnell has not yet been decided upon. North of Ireland should have sufficient resources at their command to defeat Monkstown, unless the latter are inspired by the trip to Belfast.

Scoring Matters for Tying Teams

DRUMCONDRA will play their concluding match in the League of Ireland Shield to-morrow, but the other teams, except Bray Unknowns, who have a day off, will not bring the campaign to a close until the following week-end, when the fate of Waterford and Shelbourne, in their tussle for second place to St. James's Gate, will be decided.

As between Shelbourne and Waterford there is only a difference in the goal averages, which favour the Ringsend side, who have 18-7, against 15-7, so that the scoring in the two closing matches will be of vital importance, and may, indeed, be the deciding factor. Each have 11 points, and he would be a wise man who would on "form" accurately forecast the results of this week-end's matches. "Form" this season has been a negligible guide, except in the case of St. James's Gate.

Drumcondra will have the advantage over Shelbourne of being at home, if, indeed, that means anything. But Tolka Park may cramp the style of the "reds," who swing the ball about more than their opponents. The home side will be minus their goalkeeper, Hurley, whose place has been given to Donnelly, and a change is also announced forward, P. Daly coming on for Mulvey.

The eleven decided on are: Donnelly; Dunne, Byrne; Ward, Hutchinson, M. Kavanagh; W. Kavanagh, P. Daly, McNamara, O'Brien and Kennedy.

So far the composition of the Shelbourne side has not been decided on, but it may be taken for granted that no risks will be incurred by the directorate in view of the importance of the issue.

Much also from the viewpoints of Bohemians and Brideville will depend on the result of their game to-morrow at Dalymount Park. Holders of the shield, Bohemians are in an unenviable position. Bray Unknowns and Brideville, with five points each, stand at the bottom of the ladder, with Bohemians but one point better off. Their recent exhibitions would suggest that the home team stand a good chance of getting out of the so-called "danger zone," but Wednesday's gruelling cup-tie against Distillery may have taken some of the steam out of the amateurs.

The Gate at Cork

Cork United are fortunate to have St. James's Gate as an attraction at home on Sunday. Not that the result will make much difference to either, but the attendance ought to be a big one, and the game itself should be about the best of the series.

Dundalk will have Limerick as visitors. They make one change in the eleven, Reid, who has not played for some weeks, resuming on the right wing in place of Kelly. The names of the Dundalk players are:—Cluskey; O'Neill, Crawley; Copas, Hirst, Lunn; Reid, Morgan, McArdle, Donnelly, Dwyer.

In the other match Shamrock Rovers play Waterford at Kilcohan Park. A reverse would be a serious matter for Waterford, but Rovers have not proven themselves anything but a moderate lot so far. Perhaps when the League begins to operate things will be different at Glenmalure Park. It has been stated that McCormick, the ex-Linfield forward, has not been retained by Shamrock Rovers.

The Shield table to date is:—

	P.	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
St. James's Gate	8	8	0	0	26	10	16
Shelbourne	8	5	1	2	18	7	11

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE
without Calomel — and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carters Brand Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carters Brand Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-.

FIRED AT A HOUSE

TWO YEARS IN JAIL FOR KERRY MAN

Thomas Sugrue, Tubridmore, Ardfert, Co. Kerry, pleaded guilty before the Special Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, to possession of a Lee Enfield rifle, with two rounds of ammunition for it, with intent to endanger life or cause serious damage to property, and to membership of an unlawful organisation.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. D. O'Donovan, Chief State Solicitor's Office), who prosecuted, said that on the night of 19th-20th August last two shots were fired from a rifle at the house of Maurice Lawlor, Ardfert. On 17th October Sugrue confessed that he fired the shots because of something he read in the papers to the effect that Mr. Lawlor, at a meeting of the County Council, had stated that no one should be given work on the roads unless he belonged to the L.S.F. He thought that Mr. Lawlor's statement would affect him at some future date, and he made up his mind to fire a few shots. He knew where a number of rifles were hidden, and he took the Lee Enfield rifle and two rounds of .303 ammunition from the dump. He walked across the fields, and when about two hundred yards from the house he fired the shots, making sure not to aim at windows or the door. He had experience of rifles and Thompson guns for the past six years. He had been a member of an organisation for six years, and on occasions he had been ordered by his commanding officer to clean the rifles. He would not disclose where the rifles were hidden.

A Garda Superintendent said that the accused man had no previous convictions, but he had been under suspicion in connection with a number of shooting outrages in the area. The dump had not been discovered. They had got some information from him, but were unable to locate any dump arising out of it.

The President pointed out to Sugrue the seriousness of the first charge against him, and asked if he still wished to plead guilty to it.

The accused man then said that he had had no intention of endangering life, and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Mr. Murnaghan said that the only evidence against the man was his own statement. A person who took a rifle in the dead of night and fired at a house recklessly must be guilty of endangering life.

After a short absence the Court found the accused man guilty on the remaining two charges, and sentenced him to two years' imprisonment.

Mr. Thomas Cornwall ffrench, of Busby Park, Mount Talbot, Co. Roscommon, retired farmer, who died on 22nd April last, left personal estate in England and Eire, valued at £6,942.

COUNTY GALWAY APPEAL

ROAD COLLISION AT HEADFORD

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN, MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH, MR. JUSTICE GEOGHEGAN AND MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE).

An appeal was brought on behalf of Mr. John J. Cleary, St. Finbar's terrace, Bohermore, Galway, from the findings of a jury and judgment for £895 against him, in an action in which Dr. Michael Dermody, Headford, County Galway, had claimed damages for injuries received in a collision between his motor car and a lorry owned by Mr. Cleary, at Luimneach, on October 4, 1939.

The jury answered "Yes" to the questions: Was the defendant negligent?; was the plaintiff negligent?; could the defendant, notwithstanding the negligence of the plaintiff, have avoided the accident by the exercise of reasonable care?; and the appeal was taken on the grounds that there was no evidence on which the jury reasonably could answer "Yes" to the third question; that, in answering it, they had not due regard to the trial judge's charge dealing with it; and that the trial judge was wrong in leaving the question to the jury, notwithstanding the objection of counsel for the defendant, or, in the alternative, in not directing the jury to answer in the negative.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C.; Mr. Barra O Briain, K.C., and Mr. M. J. Durcan (instructed by Mr. P. J. Keys) appeared for Mr. Cleary; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C.; Mr. R. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. T. J. Conolly (instructed by Mr. Louis E. O'Dea) for Dr. Dermody.

The case for Mr. Cleary had not concluded when the Court adjourned until next Monday.

MR. JUSTICE HANNA'S BEREAVEMENT

ACTION ADJOURNED

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT.)

The part-heard action of Mellor Bromley and Co., Ltd., Leicester, against Irish Milanese, Ltd., Dublin, was adjourned on account of the bereavement of Mr. Justice Hanna, who had been hearing it, and whose daughter, Mrs. MacMahon, had died the previous night.

The President of the High Court sat specially in Mr. Justice Hanna's Court, and announced that on account of the bereavement suffered by Mr. Justice Hanna, with whom they all sympathised, the case would not proceed that day. Mr. Justice Hanna had intimated that he would be prepared to take it next Monday.

The action concerned a claim in respect of alleged hire of machinery and goods delivered, both of which were denied by the defendants.

Mr. A. K. Overend, K.C., Mr. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., and Mr. T. C. Tobias (instructed by Messrs. Porter Morris and Co.) appeared for plaintiffs; and Mr. Frank FitzGibbon, K.C., Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. T. G. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. Arthur Cox and Co.) for the defendants.

FORGED CHEQUES CHARGE

MAN AND WOMAN REMANDED

(BEFORE MR. CONROY.)

Aloysius Peter Prendergast, Geraldine, Athy, Co. Kildare, a professional jockey, and Annie O'Meara, Coulson avenue, Rathmines, Dublin, a shop assistant, were charged with forging and uttering cheques and obtaining money by false pretences.

Prendergast was charged with forging the name "A P. Prendergast" to a cheque for £3, which was then signed "Ellen Delahunty and Marie Josephine Delahunty," with uttering the cheque to Mr. Jack McFarland, 7 Ballybough road, Dublin, and with obtaining by false pretences £3 by means of the forged cheque.

Annie O'Meara was charged with the theft of two cheques belonging to the Misses Ellen and Marie Josephine Delahunty, 233 Upper Rathmines road, Dublin, from the office of Messrs. Pearson and Deey, 16 Dawson street, with forging the name "Henrietta, Ltd.," on the cheque, and with uttering the forged cheque to Charles Smirke, and with obtaining £5 by false pretences from him.

Detective Officer O'Connor said that, after being cautioned, Prendergast said that he got one cheque from Miss Annie O'Meara, who worked in Messrs. Henrietta, Ltd., Henry street. He made it out to himself for £3, and he got £1 from Jack McFarland, the bookmaker for it, and lost the other £2 in bets with him. Miss O'Meara, who, after being cautioned, told him that she was at the Phœnix Park races about October 4th, and found a cheque there. She filled in the cheque, making it payable to Messrs. Henrietta, and endorsed it Henrietta, Ltd., and A. O'Meara. Mr. Charles Smirke, she said, cashed it for her for £5. She had never seen the other cheque made payable to A. P. Prendergast. Prendergast was a friend of hers.

FURTHER STATEMENT

On Wednesday morning last Miss O'Meara had called to the Detective Branch and said that she wanted to make a further statement. After being cautioned, she said that her previous statement was wrong. She said that she went to Pearson and Deey's inquiry office to see Ian McCabe, who worked there. McCabe was putting away some cheques and she stole two of them. Charlie Smirke cashed one for £5 and she asked him not to lodge it until the end of October. Sometime afterwards she asked Prendergast to inquire about the cheque from Smirke.

Prendergast told her that Smirke had told him to tell her to forget about the cheque, as he had burned it. Prendergast asked her for the other cheque and she gave it to him. He told her that he had made it out for £3 and had got £1 from McFarland for it. McCabe or Prendergast did not know that she had stolen the cheques.

Detective-Officer O'Connor said that before she signed the statement he had asked her if she realised what it meant. She came back on Wednesday evening and said that the statement was correct, with the exception of the first part. She said that when she went into the office of Messrs. Pearson and Deey, Ian McCabe had a number of cheques in his hand. The statement continued: "I took two cheques from the bundle in his presence and put them in my pocket. I showed them about a week later to Prendergast, who asked me for one of them. He told me that he would get a loan of £1 from McFarland on one of them." She gave him one, and Prendergast later told her that he had got £1 from McFarland on one of them. Some time later she was at a race meeting with Prendergast. They had lost their money and Prendergast suggested to her to ask Charlie Smirke to cash the other cheque and get him to hold it until they would have the amount to pay back. Then they could destroy the cheque. She then filled in the cheque for £5 and got the £5 from Smirke, and gave a few pounds of it to Prendergast.

The two defendants were remanded on bail for a week. Mr. Herman Good appeared for Miss O'Meara.

BALLINASLOE WORKHOUSE CASE

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

The action of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health against Richard J. Kenny, Society street, Ballinasloe, was listed to be mentioned. It concerned the use of portions of Ballinasloe Workhouse which had been leased to Mr. Kenny.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy had already granted an injunction in favour of the Minister restraining Mr. Kenny from using the premises for purposes other than that of wool-scouring and kindred industries, but had refused an application for forefiture of the lease.

Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., who, with Mr. M. J. Connolly, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Keely (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), appeared for the Minister, said that the Minister did not desire to press his claim for waste, as the amount recoverable under that heading would be out of proportion to the expenses involved.

Mr. Kenny, who conducted his own case, said that he would like to make it perfectly clear that he had offered the Minister the rent for the premises, but it had been refused.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy—They will not refuse it if you pay it now.

Mr. Connolly—We will be glad to get it.

Mr. Kenny raised the question of residence on the premises. The business had, he said, to be shelved because of the world situation, but in the event of a resumption he was anxious to know whether a manager would be allowed to reside on the premises.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy said that on the evidence before him Mr. Kenny or other people had no right to reside on the premises. If it became necessary in the future to have a manager resident there in connection with a resumption of the business the matter would have to be discussed with the Minister.

On the question of costs Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy ruled that each side should bear their own costs.

STORE CATTLE SALES

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The supply of cattle at yesterday's store sale at 50 Prussia street, Dublin, was small for this season of the year, and forward-conditioned aged cattle were short of requirements. There was a good attendance of both home and cross-Channel buyers, and all best lots were in good demand at improved prices. Well-bred young cattle also met a good trade, but thin and secondary sorts are still difficult to sell. A good clearance was made.

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Very large numbers on offer and included an excellent selection of all classes, with many lots in very forward condition. The attendance of buyers was extremely large. All lots showing quality and condition met very firm bidding at prices fully up to last week's improvement, and an excellent clearance was affected. A Maxwell's polly bullocks, £27 7/6 (51/6 per cwt.); Mrs. J. J. Maher's Hereford cross polly bullocks, £23 10/- (53/6 per cwt.); C. H. Nicholson's polly bullocks, £24 10/- to £22 15/- (50/- per cwt.); R. Kelly's Hereford cross heifers, £22 5/- (50/- per cwt.); Major B. W. Bond's Hereford cross bullocks, £23 15/- (51/- per cwt.); F. C. Donegan's A.A. cross bullocks (50/- per cwt.).

MESSRS. CRAIGIE BROS.

Messrs. Craigie Bros. had heavier supplies yesterday. Aged cattle in forward condition in brisk demand at prices in sellers' favour, polled classes getting a decided preference. Secondary descriptions and well-bred young stock also met a better inquiry. A complete clearance was effected. The principal sellers were:—Patrick Walsh, polly bullocks, £30, £26; Thos. Rock, A.A. cross bullocks, £26 10/-, polly ditto, £21 10/-; Stephen Griffin, Hereford cross bullocks, £25; Patk. DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

THE DEATH OF A HUNTER

£200 DAMAGES AGAINST LAUNDRY OWNER

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

An award of £200 damages and eight guineas veterinary fees in favour of Mr. Robert H. Usher, 31 Bushy Park, Rathgar, Dublin, against Mrs. Frances Jane Mitchell, trading as the Kelso Laundry, 103-105 Lower Rathmines road, was given in an action arising out of an accident at Milltown in February last to a hunter whose value was placed at £250.

It was claimed that the injuries were caused to the animal through negligence in the management of a van, the property of the defendant, and as a result the hunter had to be destroyed. The defendant denied negligence and pleaded contributory negligence.

It was stated in evidence that the plaintiff's groom, riding a mare and leading a chestnut gelding in exercise along the Churchtown-Orwell Park road at Milltown Golf Links, when approached by the defendant's van carrying a white canopy, found difficulty in controlling the gelding, which, when the van was fifty yards away, whipped round and bolted. While the gelding was plunging and the van still approaching with the canopy covering flapping, the groom had just put up his right hand to signal the van to stop. The van stopped about fifty yards away, but the gelding had then bolted, and, dashing along the road towards Dublin, crashed into a wall at "Thornhill," eventually being captured near Harold's Cross. The gelding had subsequently to be destroyed.

DUBLIN SHOW WINNER

The plaintiff stated that the animal was one of the best jumpers he ever had hunted with, and had taken a second prize at the Horse Show in Ballsbridge in 1936. If the van had pulled up for a few minutes there would not have been any trouble.

Mr. H. O'Leary, M.R.C.V.S., who testified to the injuries received by the horse, stated in cross-examination that he could not remember any hunter in Eire being sold for £250 in July, 1940, but if he were asked to replace the gelding he would require £200 to £300 to get anything like it.

The driver of the van stated that when he was 75 yards away from the horses he saw the groom put up his hand, and he stopped. The gelding then bolted.

Mr. J. Heany, Veterinary Surgeon, stated that the value of the gelding in February would be from £100 to £150, as the bottom had fallen out of the market since the war.

The Judge expressed the view that the accident occurred as a result of the van not stopping sooner than it did.

Mr. E. C. Micks (instructed by Messrs. Barrington and Son) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. G. Cullinan, K.C., with Mr. E. M. Wood (instructed by Messrs. Milward, Jones, Mayne and Sharpe) for the defendant.

£32 DAMAGES FOR CYCLIST

Thomas Smullen, farm labourer, of No. 2 Bungalow, Whitechurch road, Rathfarnham, was awarded £32 damages against the Dublin United Tramways Company, for injuries and loss occasioned through being thrown from his bicycle when the machine caught in the tram lines at Rathfarnham on December 24th, 1939.

On behalf of the Dublin United Tramways Company, who denied negligence, Mr. Joseph Harvey, Engineer, expressed the opinion that a depression at the point where the accident occurred was not dangerous.

Mr. J. J. Devlin (instructed by Messrs. Fay and Co.), for the plaintiff; and Mr. T. Pigot (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.), for the defendants.

CORPORATION EMPLOYES' APPEAL

The appeal in the action of William Reddy and twelve other employés of Dublin Corporation against the Corporation was put in the list for further hearing.

The appeal was brought on behalf of Mr. Reddy and the other plaintiffs from an order of the High Court dismissing as being misconceived their action asking for a declaration that they were "industrial workers" within the meaning of the Conditions of Employment Act, 1936.

The trial judge held that he had no jurisdiction to hear the action, the plaintiffs not having, he decided, disclosed any right to relief in respect of the same transaction or series of transactions, and, therefore, not being properly joined in one action.

Both the appellants and the respondents argued in favour of the propriety of the joinder of the plaintiffs in one action.

Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald, K.C., Mr. Michael Binchy, K.C., and Mr. Martin Molloy (instructed by Messrs. Roger Greene and Sons) appeared for th eappellants; and Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Gerard T. Burke (instructed by Mr. Ignatius Rice) for the respondents.

HIS "DOLE" WAS STOPPED

SO HE BROKE A WINDOW

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Frederick Keegan (42), no fixed address, no business, was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment with hard labour. He had pleaded guilty to breaking a plate-glass window at Messrs. Ledbetter's, Essex quay, Dublin.

Detective-Officer T. J. Walsh said that Keegan's "dole" had been stopped because he was not genuinely seeking work, and he broke the window as a protest.

Mr. P. A. Sheehan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

MOTOR CYCLIST'S APPEAL DISMISSED

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT.)

Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. Terence Doyle) appeared for Mr. Monahan, and Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning) for Mrs. O'Neill.
